Preface

Ever since the establishment of the Legal Aid Foundation (LAF) on July 1, 2004, more than 470,000 people have applied to the Foundation for services. LAF has provided legal consultation to over 160,000 people in addition to legal services including mediation and settlement negotiation, drafting legal documents and representation in court proceedings to over 160,000 disadvantaged people.

In year 2011, the Foundation continued to provide various legal aid services, including granting legal aid in 28,495 applications and 66,398 legal consultation applications. To meet the different needs of migrant workers, new immigrants, teenagers, credit card debtors, laborers and other disadvantaged groups, the Foundation proceeded with a variety of existing service programs while launching new ones, including the “Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking” Program, the “Legal Aid for Juvenile Assistance” Program, the “Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance” Program, the “Immediate Support Program for Lador Litigation”, the “Expanded Legal Consultation” Program, and the “First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney” Program to protect the rights of criminal suspects.

By the end of 2011, a total of 2,580 attorneys have registered as the Foundation’s legal aid attorneys, and their expertise and professional ethics greatly influenced the quality of services they provided to legal aid recipients. To ensure the quality of services, the Foundation’s focus in 2011 was set upon the “elevating the quality of legal aid attorneys project”. A project team was formed to deliberate on the systematic amendment to the criteria of allowing legal aid attorneys’ participation in cases and the evaluation of their performance after case closure. A policy was made on the basis of this focus, in that attorneys with less than two years experience in practice should not represent a legally aided plaintiff or defendant in court proceedings. Also, to advance the quality of application assessment, with the exception of applications made in remote areas, no attorneys with less than three years of experience in practice should be nominated as Commissioner of the Assessment Committee. To reinforce the auditing of the opening of cases, the timeframe for following-up cases with uncollected advance remuneration has been shortened from four months to two months. The mechanism of reporting case closures was amended so that more specific details and documents in relation to conduct of the case must be listed and provided to enable evaluation of the attorneys’ performance in these cases. The complaint procedures and system flow controls were improved to encourage applicants or recipients to raise their complaints. The Foundation continued to conduct and review the Performance Evaluation System, to manage and remove unsuitable attorneys. LAF also actively arranged series of educational trainings for legal aid attorneys to advance their expertise in selected issues concerning disadvantaged groups. All of these efforts were rewarded and effects were seen.

Moreover, full-time staff attorneys have been recruited by the Foundation since 2006 to represent victims in the “RCA vocational injuries case”, the “Typhoon Morak case” and in other cases of major social concern. In 2011, the Foundation actively recruited staff attorneys, and continued to seek experienced outstanding and caring attorneys to join Legal Aid.

From time to time the Foundation recruits volunteers to assist in the various activities of the Branch Offices, and invites trainee attorneys to volunteer the role of recording staff for Assessment Commissioners. As recording staff, trainee attorneys take and computerize relevant details of each case during interviews, and the Assessment Committee make decisions on the basis of the information recorded. Trainee attorneys may choose to become legal aid services providers or Assessment Commissioners after obtaining formal qualifications, and may help to promote the philosophy of the Foundation.

The Foundation also organizes work experience for university students from social psychology and related public administration courses, and gives them recognition for their effort. By the end of 2011, the Foundation 420 volunteers, among them 101 were trainee attorneys.

Chapter 2 Legal Aid Business

Section 1 • Legal Aid Cases and Applicants

Section 2 • Operational Management

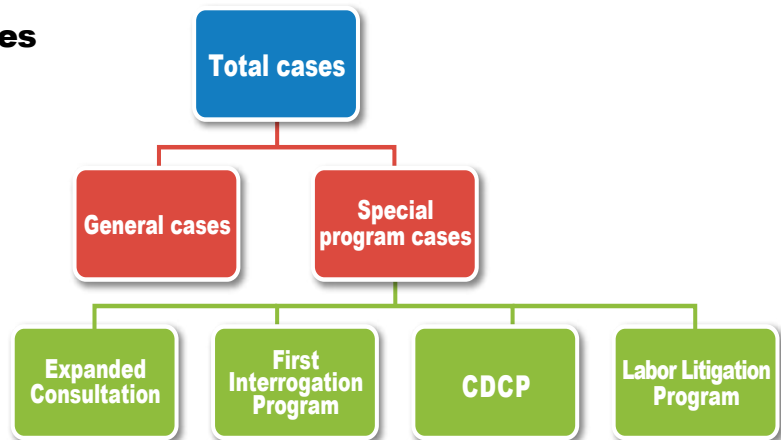

LAF provides legal aid to protect the fundamental litigation rights of people. Legal aid recipients are people who lack financial means and cannot be adequately protected by law or unable to claim their legal rights, or people who may not lack financial means but are involved in compulsory defense cases (for example, cases in which the minimum punishment is no less than 3 years imprisonment, or when they are unable to make statements in court due to intellectual disability). The services of LAF include legal consultation, mediation and settlement negotiations, drafting legal documents and representation in court proceedings.

Section 1. Legal Aid Cases and Applicants

I. Categories of Legal Aid Cases

The statistics shown in the following Tables are made according to the applications and legal aid cases handled between January 1, 2011 and December 31, 2011, which are grouped into “general cases” and “special program cases”.

(I) Special Program Cases:

Applications can be made under the “Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance Program” (CDCP), the “First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program” (First Interrogation Program), the “Immediate Support Program for Labor Litigation” (Labor Litigation Program) entrusted by the Council of Labor Affairs, and the “Expanded Legal Consultation Program” (Expanded Consultation).

1. CDCP: These are applications made to LAF for legal aid in debt negotiations, restructuring and clearance procedures under the Consumer Debt Clearance Act.
2. First Interrogation Program: When a suspect is apprehended or arrested by judicial officers (the police and investigators) for felony punishable by a minimum sentence of not less than 3 years imprisonment, or requested to be interrogated on charges of felony for the first time without a summon or notice, he/she can apply to LAF for an attorney’s company. However, when the suspect is under mental or intellectual disability, or is considered to be under mental or intellectual disability due to his/her ability to make statements, he/she can always apply to LAF for an attorney’s company during interrogation.
3. Labor Litigation Program: The Foundation is entrusted by the Council of Labor Affairs, the Executive Yuan, with the provision of legal aid services for labor.
4. Expanded Consultation: These are cases involving legal consultation (when applicants meet the Foundation’s criteria), no consultation provided (when applicants do not qualify the criteria), or closures in the form of on-site consultation in general-case applications. The legal consultation service is provided via on-site face-to-face consultation, and by phone or online video consultation for applications from remote areas.

(II) General Cases:

Other than special program cases, these are applications made to LAF for legal aid in “court proceedings representation and defense”, “mediation or settlement negotiation” or “drafting legal documents”.

II. Data Analyses of Cases

Analyses of Total Number of Applications and Approved Cases

Analyses of Total Approved Cases (including general cases and special program cases):

(I) Total Applications: See Table 1 and Chart 1

Table 1. Total Applications of General Cases and Special Program Cases

The applications made in 2011 totaled 39,393 general cases, while in special programs, 5,473 applications were CDCP cases, 592 were First Interrogation cases, 66,398 were Expanded Consultation cases, and 3,015 were Labor Litigation Program cases. Of the total 114,871 applications in 2011, a growth of 14.68% was seen in Expanded Consultation cases, which accounted for 57.80% of the total. It meant that legal consultation cases became the major source of applications and signified the public demand for legal consultation.

Table 2. Total Approved General Cases and Special Program Cases

In 2011, of the total 74,868 approvals, 24,334 were general cases, and special program cases comprised of 3,969 CDCP cases (including legal consultation); 475 First Interrogation cases which were those meeting the conditions of this special program and needing legal aid attorneys' company; 2,607 Labor Litigation Program cases; and 43,483 Expanded Consultation cases which were those meeting the Foundation's financial eligibility criteria for legal consultation provision after simplified assessment.

Analyses of General Cases

Analyses of Applications and Assessment Result

(I) Data of Applications and Approvals of General Cases: See Tables 3, 4, 5 and 6.

Table 3. Statistics of Assessment Result

The general case applications totaled 39,393 in 2011, among which 24,334 cases (full aid and partial aid) were approved and the 12,519 cases were refused. In this Table, 313 cases were recorded in the "Others" category to account for applications which have not yet received an assessment result at the time of compilation in January 2012, e.g. cases that still needed certain required documents or have not yet entered the assessment stage.

Table 4. Approval Percentage

The percentage of approved general cases in 2011 was 66.03%, which was calculated by dividing the total approvals by the sum of approvals and refusals.

24,334	12,519	66.03%
Calculation Formula: Total Approvals / (Total Approvals + Total Refusals)

Table 5. Percentage of Approved Cases by Service Categories

In 2011, most of the approved cases fell into the category of “representation in court proceedings”, which accounted for 86.29% of the total approvals. This was close to the percentage of 84.32% in 2010, indicating that “representation in court proceedings” was the main type of legal aid service provided by LAF.

Table 5 : Statistics of Approved Case Categories in 2011
Category	Representation in Court Proceedings	Legal Documents Drafting	Mediation or Settlement Negotiation	Analytic Legal Consultation
Case Total	20,997	3,147	185	5
Percentage	86.29%	12.93%	0.76%	0.02%
Note: The category “analytic legal Consultation” signifies that an applicant was granted with analytic legal consultation because of the complexity of the case. The case is assigned to a legal aid attorney, who will provide a three-hour consultation session to clarify the facts and legal issues in the case, and then provide written advice. This service is different from the general on-site verbal consultation offered in the assessment room.

Table 6. Categories and Percentages of Applications and Approvals

Of all the cases approved in 2011, 53.55% were criminal cases, 24.09% were civil cases and 21.76% were family cases. The category rankings of applications were the same as those of the approvals.

1. The percentages of criminal case applications and approvals have increased over the years: The fact that the numbers of criminal case applications and approvals have both exceeded half of the total in 2011 is an indication that the growth of criminal cases has greatly benefited from the Foundation’s method of deciding applications from prisons and detention centers on paper, offering assessment or legal consultation in prisons, and the long-term cooperation between the Foundation and District Courts, Prosecutors Offices and prison authorities.
2. The percentage of civil cases has declined over the years: At the beginning of the Foundation’s establishment, civil case applications and approvals comprised more than half of the total, but in 2010 civil case (including family cases) applications dropped to 47.69%, and to 45.29% in 2011, while the approvals were 49.5% in 2010 and 45.85% in 2011. On the other hand, criminal case applications and approvals have both reached 53% in 2011, indicating that the percentage of criminal cases have already exceeded civil cases.
3. The percentage of approved administrative cases has been low in general: Applications for legal aid in administrative cases have always been few. In 2011, the percentage was only 1.07% of the total applications, and of the 422 administrative case applications, only 137, i.e. 32.46% (calculation formula: approvals/applications) were approved. The main reason is perhaps that the procedures to claim administrative remedies are complex and the probability of success is low, therefore the Foundation’s approval rate is relatively low. Also, most people take a pessimistic attitude towards filing a lawsuit against administrative institutions.

Table 6 : Statistics of Applications and Approved Cases Categories

Category		Application		Approval
		Case Total	Percentage	Approval Total	Percentage

Note: The “unrecorded” cases are those identified by attorneys as “litigation” but without further categorization.

(II) Analyses of Reasons for Refusals (See Table 7)

Table 7. Case Total and Percentages of Reasons for Refusal

Of all the applications which were refused in 2011, most were based on the reason that they were “obviously unjustified”, which totaled 7,631 applications, or 55.70%. “Financial ineligibility” was the next main reason for refusal, which totaled 3,641 applications or 26.58%. The numbers were not much different from those in 2010.

Table 7 : Case Total and Percentages of Reasons for Refusal

Category	Case Total	Percentage
Obviously Unjustified	7,631	55.70%
Financial Ineligibility	3,641	26.58%

Case Types Analyses

Table 8. Top 5 Types of Approved Civil Cases

Of the top 5 types of approved civil cases, “tort” ranked the first by 2,534 cases, followed by 369 cases of “lending dispute”, “unjust enrichment”, “salaries dispute” and “occupational injury compensation dispute” ranked third, fourth and fifth respectively.

The top 5 types of approved criminal cases were the same as the previous years, and “narcotic drugs” cases ranked first in 2011.

5	Robbery or Piracy	936

Note: Legal aid recipients in this table include the accused and complainant, and legal aid services covered include representation and defense during investigation and trial proceedings.

Table 13. Statistics of Assessment Result of Compulsory Defense Cases

For compulsory defense case applications, besides those made in person or by referral, the Foundation allows these applications to be decided on paper (without face-to-face interviews) so that prisoners or accused in custody may apply for legal aid. A number of LAF branch offices may even visit prisons or detention centers to process applications. Based on the philosophy of human rights protection and stipulations in the Legal Aid Act, these cases are usually approved except for those obviously unjustified. A total of 7,842 criminal compulsory defense cases were approved in 2011, which was an increase of 118 cases or 1.53% from the 7,724 cases in 2010.

Table 13 : Statistics of Assessment Result of Compulsory Defense Cases in 2011
Total Applications	Cases Approved	Cases Refused	Others	Percentage of Approval
10,256	7,842	2,353	61	76.92%

Note:1.The category “Others” refers to cases which were withdrawn, waiting for applicants to supply information or cases which have not yet reached an assessment result.
2.Calculation Formula: Total Approvals / (Total Approvals + Total Refusals)

Analysis of Cases Reviewed

The Review procedure is a mechanism to give remedy to an applicant or legal aid recipient who feels reluctant to accept the result of assessment by the Assessment Committee. The procedure is open to those who are “unwilling to accept refusal of the case”, “unwilling to accept the type of legal aid service granted”, “unwilling to accept partial aid”, “unwilling to accept termination of the case”, “unwilling to accept the decision on the type of case to be aided”, “unwilling to accept the decision to grant a guarantee certificate or the amount guaranteed”, “unwilling to withdraw the case”, “unwilling to accept the decision on whether to replace the appointed attorney”, “unwilling to agree on the amount of recovery payment”, “unwilling to agree on the amount of contribution payable” and “unwilling to agree on the amount of withdrawal payment”.

Table 14. Total Number and Percentage of Reviewed Cases

In the majority of the applications for review, i.e. in 2,345 cases, the reason for review was “unwilling to accept refusal of the case”. After the review, 27.99% of the original decisions were revoked, and this result was similar to the percentages of 25% and 28% in the past. Still, the quality of assessment needed to be improved because at least 1 out of 4 original assessment decisions was revoked after review.

Case Closure

A legal aid case is closed when the legal aid attorney finishes the case and applies to LAF for closure remuneration. In the case of document drafting, an attorney finishes the case by completion of drafting; in the case of mediation or settlement negotiations, by obtaining an outcome (successfully reached a mutually acceptable settlement or otherwise); in the case of litigation, when all proceedings in the adjudication level have concluded (rather than when the court issues a judgment or verdict or when the Prosecutor’s Office issues a decision to prosecute or otherwise).

Table 15. Total Number and Percentages of Closed Civil, Criminal Administrative and Family Cases

The closed cases shown in this table exclude those which were closed after Variation Assessment (e.g. cases withdrawn, cancelled or terminated).

Of all the closed general cases, services provided in court representation cases ranked the highest, which was 84.93% of all closed general cases; followed by legal document drafting services, which accounted for 14.51% of all closed general cases.

Table 17. Analysis of Civil Litigation Cases Closed

Of all the closed civil cases, the percentage of “mediation or settlement negotiation” cases ranked the highest, which was 29.86%.

Notes: 1. “Mediation or settlement” in this table refers to a case which legal aid in court representation was initially granted, but later resolved by the legal aid attorney’s petition for mediation, in-court or out-of-court settlement or other means of conciliation.
2. “Withdrawal” in this table means either party (or both parties) to the litigation withdraws from an action for reasons other than mediation or settlement.

Table 18. Analysis of Family Litigation Cases Closed

Of all the closed family cases, the results of “recovery” and “mediation or settlement” ranked the highest, while the percentage of cases which resulted in “defeat” was only 4.74%.

If a recipient is the accused or criminal suspect, the result will be judged by comparing the charge and the final court rulings or punishment. If a recipient is the complainant, the result will be judged by comparing the charge and the final court rulings against the opposing party.

Analyses of Special Program Cases

Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance Program (CDCP)

1. Statistics of Assessment Results

In 2011, the number of applications and approvals of CDCP cases were fewer than those in the previous year. The decline has been seen each year ever since the launch of this special program, mainly because the practical operations of the Consumer Debt Clearance Act was not as effective as first expected by the public.

The Foundation always keeps a positive and active attitude in the assessment of CDCP cases, resulting in the approval percentage of 64.34% in 2011, which was higher than the 62.26% in 2010. Compared with the average percentage of between 56% and 62% in the past, the approval rate in 2011 was in fact the highest in years, reflecting the Foundation’s endeavor to respond to the amendment of the Act and help people resolve their debt problems through negotiation (mediation), debt restructuring or clearance procedures.

Table 21. Statistics of Assessment Results of CDCP Cases and Legal Consultation

5,473	1,079	598	2,890	906	64.34%

2. Categories of Approved CDCP Cases

Of all the approved cases, the majority of applicants sought aid in “negotiation and restructuring” and “restructuring” as the measure for resolving debt issues. This indicated that most debtors were willing to repay their debts from their income after deducting their basic living costs.

CDCP cases can be reviewed, and the percentage of reviews which resulted in the original assessment decision sustained has experienced a slight increase in 2011, but the percentage was still relatively low if compared with those of general cases.

Analyses of CDCP Cases

First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program (First Interrogation Program)

1. Source Analysis of Cases

The program covers the first interrogation or questioning by all investigation institutions, re-questioning by public prosecutors and Detention Hearings before judges. Therefore, phone calls to apply for an attorney to accompany the suspect primarily come from five sources: the police, investigators, public prosecutors (or clerks of the district prosecutors' office or bailiffs), judges (or court clerks or bailiffs) and civilians (including the suspect or his/her relatives and friends).

In 2011, a total of 592 applications were made under the First Interrogation Program, the majority of them were referred by the police, which accounted for 47.64% of the program's total applications. This percentage was not much different from that of the previous year.

2. Application Results Analysis

In 2011, a total of 475 applications made under the First Interrogation Program were approved, which accounted for about 80.24% of the program's total applications. A total of 117 applications (about 19.76%) were refused because they were not included in the program's coverage.

Expanded Legal Consultation Program (Expanded Consultation)

1. Statistics of Expanded Legal Consultation Program Cases

For applications made under the Expanded Legal Consultation Program, if an applicant's financial status meets the Foundation's criteria, his/her case is listed in this Table as "legal consultation"; and if his/her financial status exceeds the criteria, the case is listed as "no consultation provided".

Immediate Support for Labor Litigation Program (Labor Litigation Program)

1. Statistics of Labor Litigation Program Application and Assessment Results

In 2011, a mild increase was seen in the number of applications and approvals in the Labor Litigation Program. The overall numbers grow gradually each year ever since the launch of this special program.

In 2011, the approval percentage of applications made under the Labor Litigation Program was 86.47%. The percentages have always been above 80% over the years (84.92% in 2009, as legal aid was granted in 2,478 out of 2,948 applications; 85.65% in 2010, as 2,536 out of 2,961 applications were approved). The reason might be that the Council of Labor Affairs’ regulations governing this special program (“Implementation Guidelines for Labor Legal Aid” and “Regulations Governing Aid for Legal and Living Expenses in Labor Dispute”) have not prescribed requirements on financial status. Most of the refusals were made on the basis that the case “has no prospects of practical gain or recovery”. In contrast, general cases may be refused if “the applicant’s financial status exceeds the eligibility criteria”. As a result, the approval percentage would be higher than that of the general cases.

2. Statistics of Application Matter Types and Results

In 2011, the majority of the total applications and approvals in the Labor Litigation Program were cases involving “severance payment” (41.83% of the total applications and 43.55% of the approvals). Applications with great increases were “occupational injury compensation”, which increased from 295 applications (including 264 approvals) in 2010 to 655 applications (including 580 approvals) in 2011, with a growth in applications by 20.35% and approvals by 20.80%. Cases under the “dispute over employer’s unlawful or inappropriate actions in other labor contracts” category mostly concerned workers who alleged that employers did not lawfully terminate labor contracts according to the Labor Standards Act and their rights or interests under the Act.

 3. The numbers listed in this table exclude cases which have been transferred to another branch office (transferred cases will only be counted once in the receiving branch office”).

Table 31. Age Analysis of Legal Aid Recipients

From the age analysis of legal aid recipients, it was shown that recipients in the majority of general cases and CDCP cases fell into the 31 to 40 age group. This was especially apparent in CDCP cases, which accounted for 42.82%.

Section 2. Operational Management

The content of the Foundation's operational management is diverse and covers all matters in each stage of legal aid cases. To ensure the quality of service performance, major improvement plans made in operational management are described as follows:

I. Management, Supervision and Evaluation of Legal Aid Business

(I) Management of Contribution, Recovery, Repayment and Withdrawal Charge (the "Four Fees"):

By the provisions of Articles 32, 34 and 35 of the Legal Aid Act, the Foundation is entitled to claim advanced payments made on behalf of recipients, and to claim costs from recipients who acquired properties with value exceeding NT$500,000. The Foundation is also entitled to claim costs from the losing opponent party. These are the so-called contribution, repayment and recovery monies which the Foundation can claim through certain procedures. Under Articles 21 and 22 of the Act, when an approved case is subsequently revoked by the Foundation, the Foundation can claim from the applicant any remuneration and necessary expenses already incurred on his/her case. This is the so-called withdrawal charge.

All branch offices are responsible for the collection of Four Fees, and the progress is recorded in a "Four Fees Control and Management Form". Each closed case is examined, and the cases which fulfill the Four Fees conditions will be marked as under control. Branch offices keep close contact with recipients in these cases to monitor the litigation progress. Through collaboration between the Foundation and the Judicial Yuan, a platform is established where relevant information about the cases, such as the court-in-charge and case numbers, are posted by the Judicial Yuan to enable the Foundation to cross-check with closed cases. The cases confirmed are then recorded in the Foundation's business software system to enable branch offices to collect the fees. In the process of collecting Four Fees, the Foundation relies on the responsible personnel in each branch office to take strict control. To deal with the problems reported by branch offices, the Foundation continued to make plans and assisted branch offices in reducing their costs and obstacles.

With the development of the Four Fees business, the Foundation's related regulations needed a unified interpretation or modification, while flows in standard operational procedures also needed supplements and adjustment. A deliberation team was thus formed in 2010, and the team continued to assist branch offices and aimed to provide them with expeditious responses on Four Fee issues in 2011. The Foundation began to review the Four Fees Control and Management Form in 2011, the primary objective was to check it thoroughly and make it uniform. This control mechanism is an advance process which will be replaced by the operational management system in multiple stages when modifications to the system are completed in 2012. The statistics of Four Fees Collection Performance are shown in the following table:

Four Fees Collection Performance
Type	Case Controlled	Case with Collection Due	Collection in Progress	Amount Collected (NT$)
Contribution	61	58	53	235,904
Repayment	3,578	941	706	9,820,913
Recovery	6,649	3,166	1,846	8,409,625
Withdrawal Charge	129	129	121	565,000

Note: 1. In response to the Supreme Court's decision in relation to recovery payments, LAF modified its collection operations in multiple stages. In the first stage, branch offices are required to checkup thoroughly prior to lifting control in February 2012. Therefore in this Table the recovery cases include the remuneration for work done in the courts of first and second instances are still listed.
 2. The Supreme Court decision has limited the scope of recovery collection, and some branch offices proceeded to eliminate cases which are beyond scope from control before LAF announced checkup. As a result, a decline can be seen in the "cases with collection due" and "collection in process" figures by the end of 2011. The "case controlled", "case with collection due" and "collection in process" totals are expected to drop in the 2nd quarter after the 1st quarter checkup and official lifting of control.
 3. "Case with collection due" refers to the number of cases which qualified collection of the relevant fees; "collection in process" is the number of cases in which collection have already started; "amount collected" is the money acquired after collection.

Performance Review

1. The Drastic Reduction in the Scope of Recovery Collection

Of all the Four Fees cases, the collection of recovery payments has the highest growth rate. An analysis of the Four Fees cases shows that recovery payments account for 83% of the total amount of money controlled, and 95% of it is attorneys' remuneration for cases conducted in the Court of First Instance and the Court of Second Instance. However, at the first Civil Court Session on April 26, 2011, the Supreme Court narrowed down the meaning of "remuneration" defined by Item 1, Article 35 of the Legal Aid Act. As a result, an attorney's remuneration is not considered as litigation costs entitled to assessment unless the attorney was chosen by the court or the Chief Justice as a special or legal representative for the litigant. Neither is the attorney's remuneration characterized as litigation costs entitled to assessment unless it was the fees for cases conducted in the Court of Third Instance.

Modification to the scope of recovery collection was made by the Foundation according to the abovementioned Supreme Court decision. In the future, the Foundation will not collect recovery payments unless costs have been assessed by the court. Presently, branch offices are requested to carry out a thorough checkup of the cases in control based on the Supreme Court's decision. The checkup is expected to be completed by the first quarter of 2012, and cases which are beyond the scope of collection will be released from control. An evaluation will also be performed on the effect of continuing to collect recovery payments in cases where costs have been assessed by the court.

2. The Manpower for Four Fees Collection was Still Insufficient

Since 2009, only four mid-sized branch offices, i.e. Taipei, Taichung, Tainan and Kaohsiung branch offices, have appointed staff to collect Four Fees, while other branch offices seriously lacked the manpower to enforce collection. Still, collection grows with the development of legal aid business. Besides dealing with the main and routine tasks, staff members also need to deliberate over multiple practical issues (such as the question of whether the right to claim should be justified by public laws or private laws and the scope of recovery fees). In the future, the Foundation will continue to need tremendous manpower to manage and consistently follow-up Four Fees cases, and to decide whether repayment obligations have arisen in a given case. The Foundation also has to equip each branch office with the manpower demanded by the volume of the Four Fees cases.

(II) Guarantee Certificate Management

The “Guidelines Governing Guarantee Certificate Issuing Procedures for Branch Offices” has been formulated to manage the guarantee certificate regime. To control risks, the Foundation requires branch offices to submit monthly reports on the number of guarantee certificates issued and the amount guaranteed.

In 2011, the Foundation continued to check on all guarantee certificates issued. All branch offices were required to note and report their progress and performance rate. For those having trouble with retrieval, a team was formed to find causes and solutions to speed up the process and protect the interests of the Foundation.

From establishment to the end of 2011, the Foundation had issued 1,733 certificates, which guaranteed a total amount of up to NT$980,799,087. Over the years, a total of 973 certificates have been retrieved, the total guaranteed amount was NT$457,790,800. In 2011, the number of certificates retrieved was 203, the total guaranteed amount was NT$ 115,857,221.

Statistic of Guarantee Certificates and Amount Guaranteed
Guarantees Issued	Amount Guaranteed (NT$)	Guarantee Certificates Retrieved	Guarantee Money Retrieved (NT$)
1,733	980,799,087	973	457,790,800

II. Quality Management of Legal Aid Service

(I) Management of Attorney Appointment

Legal aid attorneys are appointed according to the “Procedures of Appointing Attorneys”. In the following Tables, “Annual Cases Accepted” was calculated by case serial numbers even for multiple cases which have been combined for processing. For example, five people applied for legal aid in one labor dispute and were approved after assessment, but one attorney was appointed because these recipients’ interests did not conflict and also for the reason of litigation economy. However, a total of five cases are counted as accepted by the attorney.

In 2011, the Foundation has set up a two-year experience threshold for the assignment of legal aid cases. Also, to avoid service quality being at risk if an attorney is assigned with too many cases, the Foundation plans to control quality by measuring both caseload and remuneration in addition to enforcing a strict upper ceiling on case assignments.

The maximum caseload of each legal aid attorney is 36 cases per year. In this Table, an attorney’s caseload may exceed 36 cases in the aforesaid joint cases situation, or when he/she accepts cases made under special programs approved by the Board of Directors, or when a recipient appoints the same attorney to conduct proceedings in the higher courts.

Analysis of Annual Cases Accepted by Legal Aid Attorneys
Annual Cases Accepted	Number of Legal Aid Attorneys
1~5 Cases	716
6~8 Cases	328
9~11 Cases	305
12~23 Cases	580
24~35 Cases	149
More than 36 Cases	65
Total	2,143

In 2011, the remuneration of the majority of attorneys (714) was in the range of NT$150,000~300,000.

Amount Analysis of Annual Remuneration for Legal Aid Attorneys
Amount of Remuneration	Number of Legal Aid Attorneys
Less than NT$49999	270

NT$100000~149999	265
NT$150000~299999	714
More than NT$300000	588
Total	2,143
Note: The amount of annual remuneration was calculated not according to the actual money received by the attorneys but the amount decided by the Assessment Committee when applications were approved.

(II) Performance Evaluation of Legal Aid Attorneys

The enhancement and control of legal aid attorneys’ quality of service are based on the “Guidelines Governing Legal Aid Attorneys Evaluation” (the “Evaluation Guidelines”) and “Guidelines Governing Complaint Handling Procedures” approved by the Board of Directors in December 2006 and April 2007.

According to Guideline No. 6 of the Evaluation Guidelines, there are two sources of evaluation, one of them is based on survey statistics and the other is based on serious complaints which have been referred to the Evaluation Committee. The latter occurs when a legal aid attorney seriously violates the Attorney Regulation Act, rules of ethics or LAF regulations and should be dismissed from his/her legal aid appointment or referred to the Lawyers Discipline Committee for punishment. The Foundation or any Director of Branch Offices may decide to submit the relevant information to the Foundation's Legal Aid Attorney Evaluation Committee for evaluation under Items 4 or 5 of Guideline No. 8.

The first round of evaluation was conducted in late 2007 and was completed in a year and half by mid-2009. While the outstanding attorneys were commended at the Foundation's 5th anniversary celebration party on July 3, 2009, 13 attorneys with low quality performance or those referred to the Evaluation Committee by branch offices were sanctioned according to the degree of their fault. By Item 2, Guideline No. 24 of the Evaluation Guidelines, sanctions include "written warning", "reduction of case appointments for a certain period", "case appointment barred for a certain period", "dismissal from legal aid panel" and "referral to the Lawyers Discipline Committee".

The second round of evaluation started in late 2009 with 109 attorneys being evaluated. Two of them were referred to the Evaluation Committee after serious complaints were filed against them, and all others have received sanctions for previous complaints. Preliminary investigations were completed by September 2010 and 54 legal aid attorneys were referred to the Evaluation Committee. According to the degree of negligence or misconduct (e.g. improper attitude towards the legal aid recipient, delegation of court attendance to non-lawyers, failure to attend important court hearings and failure to draft a petition appeal to the Court of Third Instance) the Committee made the following decisions on 9 attorneys: 4 were dismissed from the legal aid panel and referred to the Lawyers Discipline Committee, 4 will cease to receive cases for a period of time, and 1 will be assigned with less cases for a period of time.

However, due to the vacancy of the Secretary-General (ex officio) and the resignation of Evaluation Commissioners as they transferred to the Board of Directors, the attendance number of the Legal Aid Attorney Evaluation Committee could not reach the quorum of 2/3 of total members, and a number of meetings failed to be convened in the second half of 2011, and the progress of evaluation was delayed. The Foundation has reported to the Judicial Yuan for new nominations of Evaluation Commissioners, and the second round of evaluation is expected to be completed in the first half of 2012.

The third round of evaluation started in June 2011, and the Foundation commenced a telephone survey of cases closed between January 1, 2010 and May 31, 2011 (about 7,449 approved cases in total). The Foundation designed and modified the questionnaires, and made use of the Council of Labor Affairs' interviewers to conduct the survey, which was completed by December 2011. The findings will be submitted to the Evaluation Committee to decide the scope of investigations to be carried out in future evaluations. Telephone surveys save costs, and as they can be finished in a short time, they improve success rate and completeness, thereby increase the value of the findings and improve the chances of achieving the objective of understanding the quality of legal aid services.

(IV) Branch Office Management

Presently 21 branch offices have been established in different cities and counties to take charge of handling legal aid applications, assessment, subsequent variations and attorney appointment. Therefore the effectiveness of front-line services closely affects the quality of the provision of legal aid.

To advance service quality and to gain sufficient understanding of branch offices' performance and information security management, and to improve assistance provided to branch offices, frequent communications, meetings and online forums have been conducted between the Foundation and branch offices. The Business Management Department and the Information Section of the Administration Department regularly examine internal data and carry out routine checks against Performance Correctness Indicators. On-site inspections of branch offices' performance are also conducted in the third and fourth quarters of each year. Matters subject to inspections and reviews include: application handling flows and assessment operations, the issuance and retrieval of guarantee certificates, complaint handling, case closure procedures, Four Fees collection, quality control of attorneys, CDCP cases handling and information security. After communications with the front-line staff, the Foundation would then provide them with concrete advice about their strength and weakness or directions of improvement.

(V) Complaint Management

Since establishment, the Foundation has received complaints raised by applicants during the course of providing legal aid. To ensure service quality, when an application is approved by the branch office, a staff member is appointed to take care of the case until it is closed. The Head Office has also appointed one staff member to be responsible for hearing and handling complaints (Complaint Hotline: 02-2322-5255). Furthermore, in order to define "complaint" and its handling procedures, the "Guidelines Governing Complaint Handling Procedures" was formulated in 2007 to improve quality and as a basis for dealing with complaints.

In 2011, the Foundation processed 145 complaints, and statistics showed that the top 3 subjects of complaint concerned legal aid attorneys (112), Assessment Commissioners (20) and internal staff (8). They were all handled according to the aforementioned Guidelines. The results of complaint handling are stated in the follow table:

Chapter 3 Special Programs

Section 1 • Immediate Support Program for Labor Litigation

Section 2 • Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance
Program

Section 3 • First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program

Section 4 • Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking
Program

Section 5 • Typhoon Morakot Disaster Service Program

Section 6 • Expanded Legal Consultation Program

Ever since establishment, the Foundation has been dedicated to develop new business categories so that people in need may be informed and make use of the resources provided by the Foundation. In 2011 the Foundation continued to provide services under the key special programs, including the “First Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program”, “Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance Program”, “Immediate Support for Labor Litigation Program” entrusted by the Council of Labor Affairs, “Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking Program”, “Expanded Legal Consultation Program” and “Typhoon Morakot Disaster Service Program”.

Section 1 · Immediate Support for Labor Litigation Program

Labor disputes occur frequently due to the depression of global economy in the recent years. To assist laborers’ difficulties and expenses when they seek judicial remedies to resolve labor disputes, the Council of Labor Affairs of the Executive Yuan (“the CLA”) has entrusted the Foundation with the Immediate Support for Labor Litigation Program (“the Program”) by way of administrative entrustment since March 2, 2009, to protect the rights of labor.

With three new labor-related laws coming into effect on May 1, 2011, the labor relations in Taiwan also entered a new phase. As the CLA stipulated the Regulations Governing Aid for Legal and Living Expenses in Labor Dispute (“the new regulation”) pursuant to the Labor Dispute Resolution Act, the scope of the Program also had to be amended. To properly perform the entrusted legal aid services, the Foundation and the CLA re-executed the entrustment contract, and agreed to provide services under the Program in compliance with the new regulation from September 19, 2011. The following paragraphs describe the performance of the Program’s key tasks in 2011.

I. Scope of Legal Aid

When facing disputes with their employers, laborers can apply to LAF branch offices for litigation assistance under the Program. Disputes may include: termination of the labor contract and employers’ failure to pay severance payments or pensions under the Labor Standards Act; employers’ failure to compensate laborers for occupational injury; loss caused by employer’s failure to take out labor insurance or to provide the truthful insurance salary; or occupational injury caused by employers’ breach of the Labor Safety and Health Act and laborers wish to file criminal lawsuits against their employers.

II. Description of Entrusted Work

The work carried out under the Program included: accepting applications from the public; assessing eligibility; appointing legal aid attorneys; examining attorney’s remuneration; forwarding remuneration; handling case withdrawals and other variations. The Program does not include requesting the return of attorneys’ remuneration in the withdrawn cases.

III. Services Provided by the Program

Legal aid services provided by the Program include: legal documents drafting; representation in civil litigation, provisional remedies proceedings, demand proceedings and enforcement proceedings; representation on behalf of the complainant in criminal proceedings before commencement of trial (limited to occupational injury cases caused by the employers' breach of the Labor Safety and Health Act).

IV. Performance

(I) Statistics and Analyses

In 2011, a total of 3,015 laborers (person/time) approached the Foundation for assistance. Most cases concerned disputes over severance payments, resembling the pattern from the past. A total 2,607 laborers (including full aid and partial aid) sought to claim their rights through the judicial process with the assistance of attorneys in legal document drafting or court representation.

Since the commencement of the Program, an average of 224 laborers received legal aid each month, which is about 28 times higher than under the previous litigation subsidy Program of the CLA. By the end of 2011, a total of 3,565 cases in the Program were closed, and the court decisions in more than 80% of the closed cases were favorable to laborers. It is estimated that a total amount of NT$700,000,000 can be gained on behalf of these laborers, and on average each laborer gained NT$190,000 with the assistance provided by the Program.

(II) Jointly organized the “Case Studies in Labor Litigation Practices” educational trainings for Legal Aid Attorneys

Between September and November 2011, the Foundation and the CLA co-hosted three educational trainings named “Case Studies in Labor Litigation Practices” in Taipei, Taichung and Kaohsiung. These trainings were organized for attorneys to acquire knowledge in labor laws and the latest development in labor litigation practices; for participants to exchange their experiences in handling cases; to enhance participants' understanding of the labor jurisprudence; and to train more attorneys to provide legal aid services in labor litigation. Experienced attorneys and academics specializing in labor relations were invited to deliver seminars on the common issues in labor litigation practice. These issues include disputes over the termination of labor contracts, wages, hours of work, transfers, occupational injury compensation and unfair labor practices. Local Bar Associations were invited to assist in these events. The response was enthusiastic and a total of 336 attorneys participated in the three training events.

(III) Expanded Publicity Channels

For more labor friends to learn about the services provided by the Program, Chairperson Jing-fang Wu and staff members attended 7 nationwide Career and Employment Expositions organized by the CLA. They included: Banciao Career and Employment Expo on March 18, Tainan Career and Employment Expo on March 23, Taoyuan Career and Employment Expo on March 26, Hsinchu Career and Employment Expo on July 30, the Inauguration of Hsinchu Employment Service Station on July 13, Chiayi Career and Employment Expo on August 13, Kaohsiung Career and Employment Expo on September 15 and Hsindian Career and Employment Expo on October 22. Each event attracted thousands of visitors and created impressive media exposure for the Foundation and the Program. The events have been a successful collaboration of resources which created a win-win result for both the Foundation and the CLA.

The Foundation and the CLA have signed the administrative entrustment contract for year 2012. The Foundation will review the various advices offered by all parties concerned over issues such as legality, effect on the operation of the Foundation's general business, doubts about costs and resources and the evaluation of attorney's market, and make plans on measures of improvement.

To carry out work under the Program in 2012, the Foundation initiated a series of operational flow adjustment and business software modification in 2011 to meet the requirements of the new regulation. It is expected that, starting from 2012, the assessment of applications made under the Program and operational flows will run in accordance with the new regulation, and provide adequate protection of the rights of disadvantaged laborers in litigation.

Section 2 · Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance Program

The Foundation continued to carry out the Consumer Debt Clearance Program (the “CDCP”) in 2011. A special project team met regularly to deliberate on the future direction of CDCP and the program’s operational flows. After the amendments to the Consumer Debt Clearance Act were passed, the team also conducted analysis and discussions on the possibility of making operational adjustments to the program. Other efforts included delivering educational trainings for legal aid attorneys; considered issues such as whether the program’s procedures should be returned to general operations and whether attorneys’ remuneration should be adjusted; reviewed the procedures of applying for reimbursement of necessary expenses in CDCP cases; and updated the CDCP Q&A Information Archives. The following paragraphs summarize the performance of this program in 2011:

I. Statics and Analysis

In 2011, the total number of applications for legal aid made under this program was 5,473, among which 1,079 were approved. The case statistics are listed below (detailed data can be found in Chapter 2: Legal Aid Business).

Statistics of CDCP Cases in 2011
Application	Approval	Legal Consultation	No Consultation Provided	Refusal
5,473	1,079	2,890	906	598
Note: 1. The statistics are for the period between January 1 and December 31, 2011. 2. Of the total 1,079 approvals, 690 were “negotiation and restructuring” cases, 59 were “negotiation and clearance” cases, 278 were “restructuring” cases, 46 were “clearance” cases and 6 were “atypical statement drafting” cases.

In the three years since the enactment of the Consumer Debt Clearance Act, legally aided CDCP cases accounted for half of the restructuring and clearance cases accepted by the Courts, indicating that most debtors have acquired assistance through this program. However, the number of debtors applying to the Foundation for legal aid declined each year, because court procedures were not as simple and expedient as initially expected, and the court’s approval rates in restructuring and clearance cases were low. Also, the attorney’s remuneration in CDCP cases is paid by reference to the actual amount of work completed, which is comparatively lower than in general cases where remuneration is paid on a per-case basis. Some attorneys have commented that the levels of remuneration in CDCP cases could not reflect their costs.

II. Evaluating the Possibility of Returning CDCP Cases to General Operations

In the beginning, the CDCP was launched to handle debtors' applications under special procedures, as it was anticipated that the high volume of applications brought by the enactment of the Consumer Debt Clearance Act may affect general cases operations. Therefore, consumer debt cases were handled under a program in which different considerations were applied to the procedures. However, as the number of applications fell each year, it became necessary to review the relevance and benefit of continuing to handle consumer debtors' cases under special procedures, and to evaluate the possibility of returning consumer debtors' cases to the general category.

Regarding the question of whether CDCP applicants can apply for reimbursement of necessary expenses, the special project team has drafted the "Procedures for the Payment of Necessary Expenses in CDCP Cases", which may be examined with other program modifications in the future.

III. Reasonable Remuneration

The standard of legal aid attorneys' remuneration in CDCP cases is different from general cases. The initial considerations were that CDCP cases were simpler, more standardized and easier to be categorized than the general cases. The processes of negotiation, restructuring or clearance procedures are connected, and the frequencies of court attendance in CDCP cases are generally not higher than in non-litigious cases. As a result, attorneys' remuneration was designed to be paid in phases according to the actual amount of legal aid work completed in each case. However, it turned out that the procedures in CDCP cases were complicated and the costs were high. The existing levels of remuneration could not cover attorneys' costs of conducting these cases, consequently the program suffered serious loss of legal aid attorneys. The Foundation planned to return CDCP cases to general operations so that attorneys would be paid according to the general standard. This could improve attorneys' reluctance to accept appointments and enhance the quality of services.

IV. Updating Q&A Information Archives

The information on the LAF webpage "Click for Understanding of the Consumer Debt Clearance Act" and blog are updated continuously, and a "Q&A" block was designed to provide answers to the questions frequently asked by debtors.

V. Introductory and Advanced Educational Trainings for Legal Aid Attorneys

CDCP cases are appointed to attorneys who specialize in consumer debt cases, and attorneys are required to attend educational trainings in the Consumer Debt Clearance Act. As most CDCP cases are difficult and fees are comparatively low, many legal aid attorneys have expressly declined to accept CDCP cases, and a sharp reduction in the number of attorneys willing to be appointed was seen in all LAF branch offices. To recruit new CDCP attorneys, at the same time explain the January 2011 amendments of the Act, a series of educational trainings were arranged by the Foundation, including the introductory and advanced courses in northern Taiwan on May 21 and June 18, and the introductory courses in central and southern Taiwan on August 27 and December 10.

VI. Publicity

The CDCP is a special project which has been carried out by the Foundation for many years. In 2011, the following publicity work has been done for the project:

- (I) The two-folded CDCP DM was revised and published.
- (II) In concert with the Legislative Yuan which passed the Consumer Debt Clearance Act Amendment Bill after the third reading in December 2011, the Foundation has revised the content of the 41 CDCP Q&A items in the LAF blog for public reference so that debtors would not be misled by the erroneous information provided by certain agencies. The Foundation also planned to establish a CDCP Q&A Archive in the near future.
- (III) The Foundation and the Taiwan Law Journal jointly published the “A Review of the Consumer Debt Clearance Act: Practical Operations and Prospects for Future Amendment – Special Conference Edition”.

Left: The journal titled “A Review of the Consumer Debt Clearance Act: Practical Operations and Prospects for Future Amendment – Special Conference Edition” was published.

Right: The “Click for Understanding the Consumer Debt Clearance Act” website was constantly updated.

With Family Sick and Disabled, Debtor Freed from Million Dollar Debt

When Mr. Jiang’s wife gave birth to twin sons who suffered from developmental delay, he started to pay for his medical and living expenses by credit cards. When he lost his job, he used cash cards to obtain loans to pay back his credit card debts. He ended up with more than one million NT dollars in debts, both old and new, and could not get out of the vicious debt cycle. Through the assistance of the Legal Aid Foundation, Jiang’s petition for debt clearance was approved by the Court. He should cash his assets and pay the banks according to the distribution ordered by the Court. But when the Court investigated and learned that Jiang had no assets under his name and was unable to pay for the clearance expenses, the Court decided that the clearance program should be terminated. Jiang appealed and claimed immunity from liability.

On December 29, 2011, the Taipei District Court ruled that Jiang did not have to pay the money he owed to the banks and all his debts were discharged. Justice Zih-rong Jhao pointed out that Jiang's annual income of 250,000 NT dollars would not be enough to pay the basic expenses for his development-delayed twins, sick wife and disabled mother. He spent no more than a few thousand dollars on the books for his sons and daily commodities, and could not be blamed for being extravagant. Justice Jhao held that "extravagance" should be judged by reference to the debtor's motivations in making consumptions and information asymmetry.

Section 3 · First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program

To balance the disparity in legal knowledge between the public and crime investigation authorities, to protect people's rights to defend their cases and to increase the effectiveness and accuracy of the investigation and adjudication processes, LAF launched the "First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program" (the "First Interrogation Program") on September 17, 2007. People eligible to apply include suspects who were apprehended or arrested for felony punishable by a minimum sentence of not less than three years' imprisonment, or those who were requested to be interrogated on charges of felony for the first time without summons or notice.

Mentally or intellectually disabled people are also eligible to apply for services under the Program. They refer to holders of the "Physical and Intellectual Disability Handbook" or medical certificates issued by health institutions; and those who were considered by investigators to be under mental or intellectual disability due to his/her inability to make proper statements. They are eligible to apply whenever they were apprehended or arrested, or when requested to be interrogated without a summons or notice. The following paragraphs describe the Program's main accomplishments in 2011.

I. Statistics & Analysis

In 2011, the total number of applications made under the First Interrogation Program was 592, and legal aid attorneys were appointed in 437 cases (please refer to relevant tables listed in Chapter 2: Legal Aid Business).

The following are analyses of the statistics:

(I) Analysis of Sources:

When people are requested to be taken immediately for the first interrogation without summons or notice and wishes to apply to LAF for an attorney's company, they can apply by phone, or the application can be made by their family or friends, social workers, the authorities in charge of the investigation of the case, the court or anyone else by phone. The sources of applications in 2011 were:

1. Civilians: 175 applications, or 29.56% of the total, were made by phone calls from the suspects or their family and friends.
2. Police: 282 applications, or 47.64% of the total, were made by phone calls from the police.
3. Prosecutors Offices: 57 applications, or 9.63% of the total, were made by phone calls from public prosecutors, public prosecuting affairs officials, court clerks and bailiffs.
4. Judicial Court: 61 applications, or 10.30% of the total, were made by phone calls from Court Chiefs, court clerks and bailiffs.
5. Others: 17 applications, or 2.87% of the total, were made by phone calls from social workers, military authorities and others not belonging to the above categories.

(II) Analysis of Results

1. Refusals: 117 applications, i.e. 19.76% of the total, were refused for not belonging to the scope of this Program. In the future, the Foundation will be more explicit in explaining the Program's coverage to avoid public misunderstanding and reduce the administrative costs in handling applications which are beyond scope.
2. Approvals: 475 applications, i.e. 80.24% of the total, were approved and granted legal aid. This result included:
 - (1) No Attorneys Appointed: 12 cases, or 2.53% of the total approvals. In these cases, applicants withdrew or interrogations were finished before attorneys were appointed.
 - (2) Attorneys Needed to be Appointed: 463 cases, or 97.47% of the total approvals. This result included:
 - a. Actual Appointments: 437 cases, or 94.38% of the total.
 - b. Failure to Appoint Attorneys: 26 cases, or 5.62% of the total. In these cases, appointments were unsuccessful because attorneys were not available.

II. Reinforced Ties between LAF and Judicial Courts, Prosecutors Offices and Police

In 2011, to secure referrals from the judicial courts, public prosecutors offices, the police and related authorities, LAF was engaged in the following activities –

(I) Visits to Police Departments

1. From May 2011, the LAF Tainan Branch visited 16 police precincts in Tainan City to present the First Interrogation Program's promotional banners and publications.
2. LAF Hualien Branch paid a visit to the Chief Commissioner of the Hualien County Government Police Department in May 2011.
3. LAF Yunlin Branch paid a visit to Chief Prosecutor Jhang of the Prosecutors Office at Yunlin District Court on June 9, 2011.
4. Chairperson Jing-fang Wu invited Commissioner Jheng-yi Zeng of the Development

Committee and staff members of the LAF Chiayi Branch to visit the Police Departments of Chiayi County and Chiayi City on August 17, 2011.

5. Chairperson Jing-fang Wu invited Commissioner Jheng-yi Zeng of the Development Committee and staff members of the LAF Kaohsiung Branch to visit the Kaohsiung City Police Department on August 18, 2011. After the visit, the Department issued official letters to its field stations, encouraging them to team up with the Foundation in the First Interrogation Program. The LAF Kaohsiung Branch also sent letters inviting them to join the First Interrogation Program, and 13 stations responded to express their willingness to join the program.
6. The LAF Shilin Branch paid a series of visits to local police precincts, and made presentations on legal aid services at 32 educational trainings which were arranged by the Taipei City Police Department for junior rank police.
7. The LAF Keelung Branch continued to visit the Keelung District Court, Prosecutors Office and local police precincts. The Keelung District Court has agreed that, in compulsory defense cases where the public prosecutor has applied for a detention order and the accused has not appointed an attorney, the court will always inquire the accused of his/her willingness to apply to LAF for attorneys' company under the First Interrogation Program.

(II) Organized Collaboration Meetings

1. A meeting with Prosecutors Offices and police precincts was held by the LAF Taichung Branch, to promote the First Interrogation Program on January 24, 2011.
2. A meeting was held on April 21, 2011 by the LAF Taipei Branch, and representatives from District Courts, Prosecutors Office and police precincts were invited to attend and exchange opinions about cooperation in the First Interrogation Program.
3. A meeting with the Prosecutors Offices and police precincts was held by the LAF Shilin Branch on December 2, 2011.

(III) Legal Consultation Service at Police Stations

To improve the police's understanding of the role of legal aid attorneys, and to increase their trust in the Foundation so that the First Interrogation Program's can run smoothly, the LAF Banciao Branch teamed up with the New Taipei City Police Department to pilot legal consultation service in the Tucheng Police Precinct. If successful, the service will be extended to other police precincts.

III. Promotions in Prisons

Besides campaigns which were directed at the general public, the Foundation also visited prisons and detention centers to promote the Program to inmates and detainees. The LAF Tainan Branch collaborated with the Tainan Office of Taiwan After-Care Association and the Tainan Service Center of Bureau of Employment and Vocational Training, Council of Labor Affairs, and paid monthly visits to the Tainan Prison, Tainan Detention Center, Tainan Open Prison, Drug Abuser Treatment Center, Lioujia Military Prison and Tainan Juvenile Detention House. Over 60 promotional events were carried out in 2011.

IV. The Incentives for and Recruitment of Legal Aid Attorneys

(I) Educational Training

To attract more legal aid attorneys to participate in the First Interrogation Program, the LAF Taipei Branch arranged an educational training on April 27, 2011 to introduce the Program, and invited attorneys to share their first interrogation experiences.

(II) Increase in Remuneration

To elevate attorneys' willingness to accompany first interrogations, the Yilan Bar Association has been subsidizing the remuneration of the legal aid attorneys of the LAF Yilan Branch since April, 2009. Upon completing the first interrogation service, legal aid attorneys receive an amount equivalent to the Foundation's remuneration from the Yilan Bar Association in addition to the Foundation's payment.

V. Collecting Suggestions from Attorneys

To understand the real situation and the difficulties facing attorneys during interrogations, the Foundation designed a survey form for the legal aid attorney to complete after providing services. Solutions and improvements can be made in response to the problems reported and opinions collected from the surveys.

VI. Outsourcing the 24-Hour Phone Service

Considering the urgent nature of the situation in which people were apprehended or arrested, the Program provides after-hours services. LAF branch offices offer 24-hour services daily, except for the Hualien and Taitung branch offices which do not provide the service at night or during public holidays; and the branch offices in off-shore islands which do not provide the service due to the shortage of attorneys practicing in those areas. The Foundation outsourced answering application phone calls and arranging attorney appointments to an external call center during branch offices' after-hours.

VII. Diversified Publicity Channels

To communicate accurate information about the First Interrogation Program to people in need, the Foundation developed a series of promotional campaigns. They included making banners symbolizing co-operation between LAF branch offices, District Courts and Prosecutors Offices; making souvenir key rings; distributing printed promotional material (DMs and posters) to LAF branch offices, support networks, police stations, Prosecutors Offices and District Courts; providing the film titled "Legal Aid – Apprehension" for public service presentation on TV; and publishing information about the Program and case reports in the 33rd and 34th issues of the Legal Aid Quarterly. Magazine advertisements were designed to inform the public of human rights concepts and to promote this Program. In addition, any relevant news was posted on the LAF website, blog and e-newsletters; the website especially set up for this Program was constantly updated; and a special EDM and information about the services provided by the Program were distributed.

Section 4 · Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking Program

As a result of global population movement, Taiwan has become a destination for marriage and labor migrants in South-East Asia. Illegal human smuggling gangs have made extortionate profits by smuggling and trafficking, at the expenses of depriving people of their human rights. Recognizing the abhorrence of the transnational crime, the Foundation stood by its mission to protect the fundamental human rights of the disadvantaged, and actively participated in the drafting of the civilian version of the "Human Trafficking Prevention Act", and has endeavored to assist victims in resolving their legal disputes.

From January 1 to December 31, 2011, the Foundation received 244 applications from transnational human trafficking victims, 229 of which were approved (full legal aid), 9 were provided with legal consultation and 6 were refused. The percentage of approvals has been as high as 97.54%. The analyses of victims' nationality and cases' assessment results are stated in the following Tables 1 and 2.

Table 1 : Statistics of Approvals and Refusals in Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking Program

Application	Approval of Full Aid					Refusal	Legal Consultation
	Subtotal	Civil	Criminal	Administrative	Family
244	229	121	105	2	1	6	9

Note:1. The numbers are based on applications, for example, 3 counts if one person makes 3 applications.
 2. Legal aid services provided by the Foundation included: legal consultation, the drafting of legal documents, representation in criminal and civil ordinary (or summary) proceedings, representation in provisional remedies proceedings and enforcement proceedings.

Table 2 : Statistics of Victims' Nationality in Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking Program

Nationality	Full Aid	Refusal	Legal Consultation	Total
Mainland China	39	0	0	39
Pakistan	2	0	0	2
Indonesia	59	2	4	65

Thailand	2	0	2	4
Vietnam	81	1	2	84
Others	2	0	0	2
Total	229	6	9	244

The focuses of this Program in 2011 are summarized below:

I. Educational Trainings for Attorneys

To ensure the quality of legal aid services, the Foundation met with social welfare groups in January 2011, and discussed the arrangement of educational trainings for attorneys. Later in the year, 3 educational trainings were held in Taipei, Taoyuan and Kaohsiung, and a total of 58 attorneys participated. In the Taipei training, the Foundation arranged for participants from the 2010 courses to visit victims' shelter. In the trainings held in Taoyuan and Kaohsiung, the Foundation invited staff members as well as attorneys who have not yet participated in trainings concerning the human trafficking issue. A Shelter Director, an experienced Chief Prosecutor and a scholar specializing in International Criminal Law gave lectures and guided the participants through the human trafficking prevention issue from different perspectives.

II. Continued to Assist the Labor Exploitation Victims of the Chiji Group

Since 2009, the Foundation assisted Indonesian domestic caretakers to claim damages in tort and unjust enrichment from their broker, the Chiji Group, who recruited them to work in Taiwan and withheld their salaries. Upon arrival in Taiwan, the caretakers were told by the broker that they still owed money in Indonesia, and were forced to sign promissory notes which allowed their salaries to be withdrawn by the broker or be handed over by their employers to pay for debts which were non-existent. The case constituted a typical mode of human trafficking. The Foundation continued to assist the victims in judicial proceedings. For more details please refer to Chapter 4 "Cases of Major Social Concern".

III. Educational Trainings for Interpreters and Plan

Well aware of the importance of legal interpretation, LAF arranged three “Advanced Class for Professional Legal Interpreters” in Nantou, Kaohsiung and Taipei between September and November, 2011. The participants of the Foundation’s 2010 courses were invited to attend. The focus of the advanced classes was on elevating legal literacy of the participants, and they received credentials for the hours of class attended. The advanced class comprised of one hour in “Interpretation Ethics and Practice”, and 4 hours in legal knowledge, including “Judicial Proceedings”, “Legal Terminology”, “Family Law”, “Succession Law” and “Property law”. A total of 35 trainees attended the classes. Furthermore, LAF Chairperson Jing-fang Wu and staff members paid a visit to Director-General Li-kung Hsieh of the National Immigration Agency, Ministry of the Interior. During the meeting, a consensus was reached regarding the possibility of making joint efforts in the future, including the training of interpreters, especially in the area of legal interpretation.

LAF Chairperson Jing-fang Wu and staff members visited Director-General Li-kung Hsieh of the National Immigration Agency.

In respect of a proper scheme to provide interpretation services, the Foundation’s Legal Affairs Department drafted the “Guidelines Governing the Establishment of an Interpreters Panel and the Payment of Fees” to provide for the standard rate of payment for interpretation services, the training of interpreters, the engagement of interpretation services and other necessary measures. To ensure that the scheme will run smoothly, it is expected that a pilot will first be implemented, in stages. With the feedback from the pilot, the draft Guidelines may be amended to ensure that a feasible scheme can be established in the future.

IV. External Meetings on Human Trafficking Prevention

On October 27, 2011, LAF staff attorneys attended the “International Workshop on Human Trafficking Prevention” hosted by the National Immigration Agency, Ministry of the Interior. Speakers from the United States, Singapore, Europe and Taiwan analyzed the development of human trafficking prevention in their jurisdictions and shared their strategies and insights. When the workshop concluded, the National Immigration Agency arranged a commendation presentation for LAF and 9 other NGOs in honor of their contribution to human trafficking prevention. The Deputy Secretary-General, Mr Cian-jhan Zeng, accepted the commendation on behalf of the Foundation.

On December 22, 2011, the Foundation was invited by the Executive Yuan to attend the “20th Meeting of the Co-ordination Conference of Human Trafficking Prevention”. As the prevention of human trafficking requires the joint efforts of government departments and organizations, the Executive Yuan convenes this meeting regularly to co-ordinate these efforts. Chairperson Jing-fang Wu and staff member attended, and before the meeting concluded, Chairperson Wu made a brief presentation on the Foundation’s accomplishments in offering legal aid to victims of human trafficking. These meetings provide the Foundation with an opportunity to raise the difficulties confronted by legal aid attorneys when they conduct victims’ cases in the Courts or Prosecutors Offices.

V. Specialist Assessment Scheme

Besides arranging educational trainings for attorneys and staff members, the Foundation engaged in framing a “Specialist Assessment Scheme” for human trafficking cases. Under the Scheme, all applications made by victims and suspected victims of human trafficking are assessed by attorneys who are experienced in conducting victims’ cases. Due to the peculiarity of victims’ circumstances, it is often difficult for them to provide proof or evidence, and as a result they may fail to obtain legal assistance to appeal their cases to the higher courts. To be able to assist the victims in all levels of Court, the Foundation planned to consider the possibility of relaxing the criteria of making or assessing applications.

VI. Increased Promotion to Migrant Spouses and Workers

The Foundation has printed DMs in multiple languages and has already distributed them on previous occasions. As the policy in 2011 was to increase the provision and promotion of legal aid services to migrant spouses and workers, the Foundation carried out a series of promotional work to improve migrants’ knowledge of the Foundation’s services.

Considering the lack of multi-lingual staff within the Foundation, the promotions in 2011 were targeted at migrant spouses who understood some Chinese, through various channels such as TV, radio, newspapers, internet and mobile phone messages. For promotions on TV, a short film titled “Legal Aid – Vietnam” was shown as public service on 6 wireless TV stations and some cable TV stations. For radio promotions, a sound track titled “Legal Aid – Vietnam” was broadcasted by 200 regional radio stations nationwide. LAF also organized 7 promotional lectures on “The Law Concerning Life of New Immigrants and Legal Aid”. The lecture material and the “Q&A about the Law Concerning Life of New Immigrants” were posted on the Foundation’s blog (<http://blog.roodo.com/laf>) for the public to browse at any time.

Section 5 · Typhoon Morakot Disaster Service Program

On August 8, 2009, the Morakot Typhoon brought historically heavy rains to the central and southern regions of Taiwan and the south-eastern areas of Taiwan, causing severe floods, landslides and debris flows in many rural areas. The townships of Jiasian (Siaolin Village) and Namasia (Sinkai Tribal Village) in Kaohsiung County, the townships of Linbian and Jiadong in Pingtung County and the townships of Beinan and Taimali in Taitung County, suffered the gravest casualties. The Morakot Typhoon brought the most disastrous typhoon crisis in Taiwan’s meteorological history. With their families lost and villages buried in debris, the surviving victims face numerous legal problems including succession, debt, land reclamation and claims for state compensation. The victims were trapped in the most helpless situation.

To help the victims deal with these legal issues, the 2nd term Board of Directors resolved to launch the Typhoon Morakot Disaster Service Program (the “Morakot Program”) in its 30th meeting on August 28, 2009. The following are the focuses of the Morakot Program and the accomplishments achieved in 2011.

I. Assisted Ali People in the Petition against Special District Zoning

If the authority considers that the safety in the disaster areas is under jeopardy or finds illegal constructions in the disaster areas, then under the Regulations Governing the Special District Zoning of Victimized Area by Typhoon Morakot, the authority may zone the disaster areas as “special district” after reaching consensus with the inhabitants. In a “special district”, the occupancy of residents should be restricted or inhabitants should be forced to relocate within a given time.

The Ali Village in the Wutai Township of Pingtung County is the most ancient tribal settlement of the West Rukai indigenous people, and they have remained in the area for several hundred of years. When the authority zoned areas of the village as “special district”, some tribe members did not agree, fearing that they would not be able to return and reconstruct their settlement, and the zoning would cause their tribe to disintegrate and their culture to fade. The Foundation formed a special project to assist the victims, work included holding local presentations, process applications for legal aid and called for a team of attorneys to take charge of the cases.

LAF team interviewed the Jialan Village victims about claiming for state compensation.

LAF team held a meeting with Siaolin Village victims to explain making claims for state compensation.

Through investigations and interviews, the team of attorneys found that: (1) the safety of the areas zoned “special district” were not in threat; (2) the initial zoning consensus was reached without consultation with those who objected to zoning; and (3) the authority did not offer proper shelter for the victims. On March 15, 2010, the LAF team helped 16 Ali tribe members file a petition to revoke the special zoning of their settlement.

When the petition was rejected, the LAF team continued to assist 5 tribe members and filed an administrative lawsuit on August 13, 2010. In 2011, the Foundation continued to proceed with the case, and assisted in the investigation of proof and evidence, settlement negotiations with the defendant authority and in other judicial proceedings.

II. Assisted Victims in Claims for State Compensation

The team comprised of LAF staff attorneys and legal aid attorneys helped the indigenous people of the Jialan Village, Jinfeng Township in Taitung County, Siaolin Village of the Jiasian Township in Kaohsiung City, Haocha Village of the Wutai Township in Pintung County and Nanshalu Village of the Namasia District in Kaohsiung City to claim state compensation. (Please refer to Chapter 4 “Cases of Major Social Concern”)

III. Legal Consultation for Victims

The Fushan tribal settlement of the Dawu Township, Taitung County, suffered grave damages from the typhoon, and tribe members have relocated. The Executive-Secretary of LAF Taitung Branch Office, Ms Cai-yi Chen, visited the Permanent Housing Community where they now live to explain their rights concerning relocation and offered legal consultation. The inhabitants of Yushan Li (Chianghuang Keng) of the Nanhua District in Tainan City also relocated to the Tzu Chi Permanent Housing Community in 2010. Later in the year, 22 residents petitioned to the District Office to say that their entitlement to receive the Nanhua Reservoir water resource repayment was revoked since 2011. They believed that the revocation was unfair and wished to recover their entitlement. LAF Tainan Branch immediately offered legal consultation and helped them fight for the recovery.

IV. Publicity

In 2011, two years after the Morakot Typhoon disaster, the publicity work done for this program included: assisted the Jialan Village residents hold a press conference about claiming for state compensation; issued correspondences to the “Morakot Typhoon Post-Disaster Reconstruction Council” of the Executive Yuan for its support in inviting the “Life Reconstruction Center” in each victim area to join the Legal Aid Support Network, to refer cases and to provide legal aid information. A total of 7 “Life Reconstruction Centers” responded and joined the Network, and the Council continued to help distribute reports from the Morakot Typhoon News Network.

Section 6 · Expanded Legal Consultation Program

According to Subsection 1 of Paragraph 1, Article 2 of the Legal Aid Act, legal consultation is one of the legal aid services provided by the Foundation. Public demand for consultation on various legal issues grew rapidly with social changes. To meet this demand, LAF has provided legal consultation services which are described below:

I. Face-to-Face Legal Consultation at Service Stations or Branch Offices

To provide the public with convenient and extensive services, the Foundation launched the Expanded Legal Consultation Program on April 1, 2009. People can make reservations online (<http://www.laf.org.tw>) or by phone (02-3322-6666) for face-to-face consultation with an attorney. In 2011, the Foundation offered legal consultation in a total of 108 service stations.

Top: The operators answered hotline calls for the reservation of on-site legal consultation services.

Bottom: The Foundation's exclusive website for reserving legal consultation services online.

II. Steady Applications and Provision of Convenient Services

The number of applications received by the Foundation since the launch of this program showed that the availability of the service has encouraged the public to seek professional advice when facing legal problems. The growth in the number applications for consultation as a whole was prominent. By the end of 2011, the total number of cases was 43,483, which was a further mild increase from the 42,559 cases in 2010, indicating that public demand for legal consultation was realistic and the Foundation has been able to offer that service.

III. Effectiveness Management

To achieve economy of scale and effective use of resources, the Foundation implemented effectiveness management of each legal consultation service station in 2011, and planned to perform an overall inventory check in 2012. As it is necessary to consider the economy of providing legal consultation services, service stations with unsatisfactory performance in the first quarter of 2012 will be closed (except in remote areas).

in Sinyi Township, Nantou

In 2011, besides proceeding with the key service programs, LAF also continued to offer legal aid in cases of major social concern described as follows:

Section 1 · The Case of RCA Pollution

Since its establishment in Taoyuan in 1970, the plant of the Radio Corporation of America (the “RCA”) in Taiwan illegally used trichloroethylene and other toxic chemicals generally considered as carcinogens. Moreover, the ventilation facility at the workplace never met the labor hygiene safety standards during the eight formal labor inspections before the plant was closed down. Consequently the employees suffered from death, cancer, miscarriage and other serious damage to their health due to contacting, inhaling or drinking the aforementioned chemicals at the workplace.

In late 2006, the RCA Employees’ Care Association applied to the LAF Taipei Branch for legal aid. LAF staff attorneys called for the participation of pro bono attorneys, formed a volunteer team and filed a class action against RCA. This case requires knowledge from the disciplines of occupational safety and health, environmental engineering, toxicology and epidemiology. The case also involved legal issues such as causation, piercing the corporate veil and the statute of limitation. Specialists from the relevant fields joined the volunteer team of attorneys to give evidence to the Court. When the debate over the question of the applicable judicial procedures concluded in 2007, the Taipei District Court commenced investigations and hearings. In 2009, the Court summoned witnesses for the first time, and requested them to make statements on facts relevant to RCA’s violations of the law. In 2010, the collegial panel of Taipei District Court instructed the plaintiffs to survey the victims’ status by way of questionnaire.

The LAF Taipei Branch held a conference on the RCA pollution case.

To conduct the field survey for the first cross-disciplinary class action in Taiwan’s history, the Foundation was under limited manpower and funding, and managed these tasks at the most economic costs through external communications and voluntary collaboration. In 2011, the Foundation called on a group of legal and medical volunteers to conduct and record the survey results, and 305 copies of first-hand information about the victims were completed.

The recruitment of volunteers in 2011 materialized cross-disciplinary connection of volunteers, attorneys, doctors and sociologists, and the team helped to clarify the issues in dispute in this project. The participation of academics and specialists from different fields also ignited the possibility of future collaboration. In the future, the Foundation plans to build a basic model of conducting investigations in public nuisance litigation, and establish a cross-disciplinary human resources archive for future references.

Section 2 · State Compensation in High School Teacher's Sexual Assault Case

A school campus should have been a space filled with youthful joy and a place to study, but a teacher of a national vocational high school in Tainan broke the rule by committing sexual assault on at least nine female students. He took the advantage of his authority as a teacher and intimidated the students with superstitious tricks. It was only when the parents of these students complained to the Prosecutors and sought help from LAF Tainan Branch and the Humanistic Education Foundation (the "HEF") when his evil deeds were exposed and further threats to other students were prevented.

The offender used superstitious charms to convince the victims.

The case was initially taken care of by the HEF, and later referred to LAF Tainan Branch for legal aid by the commissioner of HEF. Through the assistance of the former Director of LAF Tainan Branch and a legal aid attorney who carefully studied the case and patiently communicated with the victims, the public prosecutor was better informed of the details of the case. In the end, the Supreme Court ordered that the defendant must serve 17 years in prison, which was the most severe punishment the Court has ever ordered in this type of crime. Regarding civil compensation, the Court ruled that the offender must pay NT$15,000,000 in compensation to 5 victims and their parents. To fight for the victims' deserved compensation, the attorneys also issued proceedings for provisional seizure and compulsory execution on behalf of the victims.

As provisional seizure involved lengthy procedures, the victims waited for compensation payments for a long time. Considering that the school was at fault in allowing the offender to commit the crime on campus, the attorneys again assisted the victims and their parents to claim state compensation. Finally the Court approved the petition and ordered the school to pay NT$6,700,000 to the 5 victims' families.

In this case, the victims were assaulted because the offender held the position as a teacher, and took advantage of his authority, work hours, convenience of the campus and committed the crime during the course of employment in breach of Article 2 of the State Compensation Act, which provides that "the State shall be liable for any damage arising from the intended or negligent act of any employee of the Government acting within the scope of his or her office or employment which infringes upon the freedom or right of any person." As the first case in which state compensation was awarded to students who were the victims of a teacher's sexual assault, this case carried great significance in the protection of people's rights.

Section 3 · The Chiji Group Illegally Withheld Migrant Workers' Salaries Case

The case of the Chiji Group illegally withheld migrant workers' salaries was exposed by the media in 2009. It was estimated that several thousand of domestic caretakers who worked in all areas of Taiwan were victims of the Group's illegal practices.

The agencies under the Chiji Group introduced Indonesian domestic caretakers to work in Taiwan. Upon their arrival, the agents misled the caretakers into believing that they still owed money back in Indonesia. Threatened to be repatriated and to repay costs, the caretakers were forced to sign an agreement and a promissory note which allowed the defendants (and the employers) to withdraw their salaries to pay back debts which were non-existent. If the defendants did not receive the monthly pay, they would apply for court order to garnish the caretakers' salaries on the basis of the agreement or promissory notes they signed. As a result, many of the caretakers received meager payments in return for their hard labor.

As the victims lived in different regions, a cross-city (county) team of LAF staff attorneys and legal aid attorneys was formed. The Foundation and its branch offices collaborated with the Council of Labor Affairs and its local Bureaus to visit the victims. After interviews, nearly 300 Indonesian domestic caretakers who came to work in Taiwan through the Chiji Group and whose wages were withheld applied for legal aid. Branch offices appointed attorneys to represent the caretakers in ancillary civil action to claim damages in tort and unjust enrichment.

The case entered closure phase from the end of 2011. In 2011, the criminal lawsuit has been appealed to the Court of second instance, while the ancillary civil action aided by the Foundation has finished proceedings in the Court of first instance. By December 31, 2011, the judgments enclosed in legal aid attorneys' closure reports showed that the Miaoli District Court has declared provisional execution totaling NT$5,340,176 (excluding interests) for the 108 victims aided by the Foundation. The Foundation will continue to coordinate branch offices to aid victims who still worked in Taiwan to apply for provisional execution. The defendants have appealed the Miaoli District Court's decision in the civil action. This case constituted a typical mode of transnational human trafficking, and the Foundation will continue to help the victims in the related judicial proceedings.

Section 4 · State Compensation for Villagers of Jialan, Siaolin Haocha and Nanshalu

On August 8, 2009, the flood generated by the torrential rain brought by Typhoon Morakot caused unprecedented calamities in Taiwan's meteorological history. Many rural regions were destroyed by floods and buried in debris flows. On learning of the disaster, LAF immediately offered to assist the victims by providing legal consultation on the phone; handled applications for death declarations, issuance of death certificates and waiver of the right to inheritance; submitted inventory of properties to the court; and filed petition for administrative remedy on behalf of the tribe members who objected to the special zoning of their settlement.

In helping the victims to fight for their deserved rights, the team of LAF staff attorneys and legal aid attorneys assisted the indigenous people of Jialan Village of Jinfeng Township in Taitung County, Siaolin Village of Jiasian District in Kaohsiung City, Haocha Village of Wutai Township in Pingtung County and Nanshalu Village of Namasia District to claim state compensation.

I. Jialan Village of Jinfeng Township in Taitung County

On the morning of August 8, 2009, the torrential rain brought by Typhoon Morakot began to flood the Jialan Village. At about 5am, water of the South Taimali Stream broke through the protective dikes along the river bank. Flood waters rose to the height of the first floor, crashing houses and farms, and the surrounding fields were buried in debris. After the disaster, damage count in the Jialan Village included 46 houses which were entirely destroyed and 100 hectares of farmland immersed in flood. The roadbed of the access road (East 84 Highway) was washed away, and the village's connection with the cities was severed.

The Jialan villagers of Taitung County held a press conference for state compensation case.

The villagers blamed the damages on the authorities. In July 2005 when the Typhoon Haitang landed, 16 houses in the Jialan Village were drowned in river flood. When the villagers demanded that river remediation construction be carried out, the engineering authorities' only solution was to arrange concrete tetra pods in the river, and that was the main cause of the calamities after the Typhoon Morakot invasion.

The villagers of Jialan wished to claim state compensation and applied to LAF for legal aid in 2010. The special team of the Typhoon Morakot Program evaluated the case, visited the villagers to explain their rights, handled their applications for legal aid and formed a team of attorneys to conduct the case.

The team of attorneys spent 10 months on investigations and interviews, and formed the opinion that: (1) the Council of Indigenous People of the Executive Yuan and the Taitung County Government were at fault in safety control and the relocation policies of the indigenous villages; (2) prior to the Morakot Typhoon invasion, it had been the Executive Yuan's fault that "there was a gap in coordinating the Central and local Emergency Operations Centers" and that "the Central Emergency Operations Center failed to analyze and predict the scale of the flood on the basis of the anticipated precipitation and inform the local governments of its gravity"; (3) the Council of Agriculture of the Executive Yuan and its Soil and Water Conservation Bureau, the Forestry Bureau and its Taitung Forest District Office were slow to complete flood prevention measures for the upstream parts of the river before Jialan Bridge; (4) The Water Resources

Agency, Ministry of Economic Affairs and its 8th River Management Office were slow to complete the construction of the planned dike for the left bank of Jialan River, which was part of the improvement project of the Taimali Stream System in 2006, hence resulted in the collapse of protective dikes and the ensuing flood during Typhoon Morakot's invasion. On August 4, 2011, the team assisted 63 villagers to claim compensation from the aforementioned authorities for the loss of houses and inherited artifacts, which included traditional clothing, pottery urns, glass beads and other precious cultural assets that valued around NT$113,000,000.

When the aforementioned authorities failed to respond, denied their liability or refused to compensate, the LAF team of attorneys continued to assist the villagers in filing the lawsuit on December 19, 2011.

II. Siaolin Village of Jiasian District in Kaohsiung City

The 2000mm's precipitation in the mountain areas of Kaohsiung brought by Typhoon Morakot between August 6 and 8, 2009, caused landslides in the Jiasian Township (later upgraded to Jiasian District of Kaohsiung City on December 25, 2010). The Village of Siaolin in this township was buried by debris and mudflow. The bridges were broken, and all the roads were disconnected. More than 400 villagers died or went missing in the disaster, which was one of the gravest natural catastrophes in Taiwan's history.

The villagers blamed the authorities for failing to enforce evacuation and other calamity prevention measures. The victims of Siaolin wished to claim state compensation and applied to LAF for legal aid in 2010. The special team of the Typhoon Morakot Program evaluated the case, visited the villagers to explain their rights, handled their applications for legal aid, made calls to villagers who had not yet applied, and formed a team of attorneys to conduct the case.

After investigations and interviews, the team found that: (1) the officials of the Jiasian Township Office failed to stay on duty when the Emergency Operations Center was established during the Typhoon Morakot flood invasions; (2) the officials failed to enforce evacuation when the Soil and Water Conservation Bureau of the Council of Agriculture and the Kaohsiung County Government announced red alert of debris flows; (3) the Kaohsiung County Government failed to actively instruct and assist the Jiasian Township Office to execute compulsory evacuation in the affected area, resulting in the death of some villagers. The team formed the view that the aforementioned authorities' failure to perform their duty have caused damage to the villagers' interests, and were liable to pay compensation. The team assisted 55 victims to claim approximately NT$260,000,000 for maintenance and damages for pain and suffering.

The Kaohsiung State Compensation Committee decided that the typhoon was a force majeure event; and as the resulting disaster bear no causal relationship with the actions of the aforementioned governmental officials, the claimants had failed to establish liability under Item 2 of Article 2 of the State Compensation Act. Accordingly, the Committee refused to pay. The LAF team of attorneys will continue to assist the villagers to file lawsuits.

III. Haocha Village of Wutai Township in Pintung County

The invasion of Typhoon Morakot on August 8, 2009 caused the entire Haocha Village to submerge in water from the Ailiaonan Stream, and the villagers' houses, land and properties were all washed away.

The villagers blamed their severe loss on the authorities for the inappropriate relocation policy, inadequate plans for safety improvement and relocation, and tardiness in carrying out river remediation construction, water and soil conservation and disaster prevention.

The villagers wished to claim state compensation and applied to LAF for legal aid. The special team of the Typhoon Morakot Program evaluated the case, visited the villagers to explain their rights, handled their applications for legal aid and formed a team of attorneys to conduct the case.

After investigations and interviews, the team of attorneys decided that: (1) while the Council of Indigenous People of the Executive Yuan and the Pintung County Government began to evaluate the relocation plan in 2007, they failed to actively execute, instruct and supervise; and the delay in relocation resulted in the Haocha Village being buried when the Typhoon Morakot invaded in 2009; (2) The Water Resources Agency, Ministry of Economic Affairs and its 7th River Management Office and the Pintung County Government failed to carry out damage prevention and remediation work for the Ailiaonan Stream in a timely manner; (3) the Council of Agriculture of the Executive Yuan and its Soil and Water Conservation Bureau, the Forestry Bureau and its Pintung Forest District Office, did not actively carry out soil and water conservation for the Ailiaonan Stream, forest conservation and damage prevention; (4) the Executive Yuan was at fault to allow "a gap in coordination between the Central and local Emergency Operations Centers" and "the Central Emergency Operations Center failed to analyze the specific scale on the basis of the predicted precipitation and inform the local governments of its gravity". On August 5, 2011, the team assisted 77 victims to claim compensation from the aforementioned authorities for their loss of houses and inherited artifacts, including traditional clothing, pottery urns, glass beads and other precious cultural assets that valued NT$270,000,000.

Later the aforementioned authorities failed to attend negotiations, and unilaterally denied liability or refused to compensate. The LAF team of attorneys will continue to assist the villagers with filing the lawsuit.

IV. Nanshalu Village of Namasia District

During the attack of Typhoon Morakot, the torrential rain in the mountains of Kaohsiung caused large scale landslide to the Nansasu Village of Namasia Township (upgraded to Namasia District of Kaohsiung City on December 25, 2010), and resulted in more than 20 deaths and nearly a hundred houses destroyed.

The villagers of Nansalu believed that the damages to their houses and the deaths to their families were caused by failure of officials of the Kaohsiung County Government and the Namasia Township Office to execute evacuation and conduct evacuation drills; the absence of any rescue and escaping plan; inappropriate cross-watershed diversion construction; and the lack of consistent work on forest, water and soil conservation.

The villagers wished to claim state compensation and applied to LAF for legal aid. The special team of the Typhoon Morakot Program evaluated the case, visited the villagers in December 2011 to explain their rights, handled their applications for legal aid and formed a team of attorneys to conduct the case.

LAF team of attorneys made a trip to the rural Haocha village for the state compensation case.

Section 5 · The Mysterious Deaths by Poisoning Case in Sinyi Township, Nantou

In July 2011, two indigenous couples, Mr. and Mrs. Lin and Mr. and Mrs. Tian, dined and drank together in the Sinyi Township of Nantou County. Later in that night they felt ill, showed symptoms of vomiting, limpness and unconsciousness, and died after twitch and convulsion, with their bodies stiff from symptoms of “opisthotonus”. Their mysterious deaths roused disturbance in the community after widespread news report. Through months’ of investigations, the police and public prosecutors finally confirmed that they died of ethylene chlorohydrins poisoning from the rice wine provided by the accused Mr. Jhu, and the case was solved.

When the case was exposed by the media, the LAF Nantou Branch contacted the Association for Victims Support, and held a meeting in August 2011 to explain the legal rights and succession issues to the victims’ families and assisted them to apply for legal aid.

Four of the nine family members qualified the Foundation’s financial criteria. After assessment by LAF Nantou Branch, the Foundation decided to provide legal aid to help them deal with the non-litigious succession issues and also to represent them in the ancillary civil action of the criminal lawsuit. The family members who were not financially eligible were provided with assistance under the “Walks with You All Along Program” of the Nantou branch of the Association for Victims Support.

2. The following is the analysis and explanation of the items having more than 10% of change:

(1) Decrease in "Overtime pay"

The decrease resulted from the Foundation's literal control of overtime hours in 2011.

(2) Increase in "Dining foods for working overtime" and "Foods"

The increase resulted from increase in the cost of the meals for personnel and the members of the reexamination committee due to more reviews being conducted at noon in 2011.

(3) Increase in "Performance bonus", "Year-end bonus"

The increase resulted from the rise of new employee retention rates in 2011.

(4) Decrease in "Educational training"

The decrease resulted from reduction in administrative management related training and courses in 2011.

(5) Increase in "Redundancy payment"

The increase resulted from the redundancy payment to the employees departing due to the Foundation's organization adjustment in 2011.

(6) Increase in "Travel expenses"

The increase resulted from adding directors and executive secretaries of respective branches to the attendance of the project meetings in 2011.

(7) Decrease in "Freight"

By adding e-mail to transmit administrative management data in 2011, the fee incurred from delivery of the paper-form documents relatively reduced.

(8) Decrease in "Advertisement", "Operation and publicity", "Special projects"

The projects were executed according the budget approved for 2011. The approved budget for 2011 was less than that for 2010, so the expenses reduced.

The decrease resulted from less repair of office air-conditioning facilities and other kinds of office equipment in 2011.

(10) Increase in “Chartered accountants and actuaries remuneration”

In 2011, the semi-year financial statement audit was added, so the fee charged by the chartered accountants increased accordingly compared with 2010. .

(11) Decrease in “Other professional service charges”

There were no project services for translation and research of foreign legal aid related laws and regulations and the project of “the introduction of key assessment indicators and manpower inventory check” occurring in 2011. Hence, the expense in 2011 was less than that in 2010.

(12) Increase in “Books, newspapers and magazines”

The increase resulted from added purchase of full-time attorney related law books in 2011.

(13) Increase in “Various kinds of amortization”

The management system software for developing new businesses was added in 2011, which resulted in the increase of the amortization fee.

There was a budget for overseas field trips for 2011, but the Foundation overhauled the system regarding employee’s application and the Foundation’s selection of employees for overseas field trips. After revision of the system, the Foundation did not dispatch any of its employees to foreign countries, so the expense was reduced in 2011.

Section 1 · Outreach Services for Rural Areas

In the 7 years of the Foundation's development, 21 branch offices were established around Taiwan so that people may apply for legal aid from an office in their neighborhood. To improve access for people living in remote regions and to balance legal resources in metropolitan and rural areas, regular service stations were set up and outreach legal services have been arranged by branch offices from time to time. LAF hopes that diversified services and the channels of applying for them may help the public access legal services.

In 2011, a total of 40 legal consultation events were held in the indigenous settlements and villages of the mountain regions of different counties and cities. For example, LAF Yilan Branch collaborated with the Community Centers of Datong Township and Nanao Township to hold the "Itinerant Promotion of Consumer Protection and Legal Aid for Indigenous Townships" at the Leshuei Village and the Lunbei Village of Datong Township, and at the Wuta Village and the Bihou Village of Nanao Township; LAF Taichung Branch and Taichung Bar Association jointly held the "Civilian Legal Service" at Heping District, Fushoushan and other remote towns; LAF Changhua Branch and Changhua Bar Association jointly held the "Civilian Legal Service" at Pitou Township, Fenyuan Township, Ershuei Township and Sijhou Township; LAF Matsu Branch arranged legal consultation service at the Beigan Township Office; and the LAF Chiayi Branch held the "Legal Consultation Service for Rural Area" at Meishan Township. These were some of the efforts to improve access for disadvantaged people who were in need of face-to-face legal services.

In 2006, LAF named the second Saturday of July each year "National Legal Aid Day". On that day, all LAF Branches would arrange services for people living in rural areas. In 2011, the National Legal Aid Day fell on July 9, and a series of events were arranged by all 21

Section 3 · Legal Education

To help law school students acquaint with legal aid concepts and issues concerning disadvantaged people, LAF initiated a cooperative project with colleges and universities in 2011 by offering "Legal Aid Case Studies Course". It was expected that through understanding the Foundation's legal aid cases, law students would become more concerned and identify themselves with legal aid and the rights of disadvantaged people in society. In the long term, it was expected that students would learn about legal practice and be inspired to join the Foundation's work in serving the disadvantaged, thus the Foundation's responsibility in promoting legal aid education would be fulfilled.

Mr. Rajen Devaraj, Secretary-General of the Bar Association of Malaysia, paid a visit to LAF on June 16, 2011. Before arriving Taipei for the Presidents of Law Association in Asia Conference (the “POLA conference”), Mr. Devaraj informed the meeting organizer of his wish to visit LAF. On the day of his visit, LAF Secretary-General Ji-feng Liao welcomed and briefed him in person before an exchange of thoughts. Mr. Devaraj explained that in February 2011, the Legal Aid Foundation in Malaysia was officially established, and its main ideas and constitution were developed from consultation with LAF’s systems. Therefore Mr. Devaraj wished to take the opportunity of attending the POLA conference in Taipei to express his gratitude to LAF.

Members of the China Legal Aid Foundation visited LAF.

Mr. Rajen Devaraj from the Bar Association of Malaysia visited LAF.

Deputy Chairman of the Constitutional Court of Mongolia visited LAF.

(V) Visit of Deputy Chairman of Constitutional Court of Mongolia

Mr. Jantsan Navaanperenlein, Deputy Chairman of the Constitutional Court of Mongolia, and his wife were invited by the Department of West Asian Affairs, Ministry of Foreign Affairs to visit Taiwan from August 21st to 26th, 2011. They paid a visit to LAF and were greeted by Chairperson Jing-fang Wu, Deputy Secretary-General Jhan-cian Zeng and senior members of the Foundation. An enthusiastic exchange of thoughts on the judicial and legal aid mechanisms of Taiwan and Mongolia ensued during the meeting, and Mr. Navaanperenlein also expressed his admiration for the establishment of legal aid system in Taiwan.

(VI) Visit of Anti-Human-Trafficking Specialist Mr. Roger Plant

Mr. Roger Plant, a reputed specialist in fighting against human trafficking, visited LAF on October 26, 2011. Mr. Plant used to be the Head of the International Labour Office's Special Action Programme to Combat Forced Labor, which was a program aiming to wipe out situations where people were forced to work against their will. Invited by the Bureau of Employment and Vocational Training, Council of Labor Affairs and the Chung-Hua Labor and Employment Relations Association, he came to Taiwan for the "International Course on Forced Labor and Human trafficking – Eliminating the Shadow of International Immigration". Mr. Plant expressed his wish to visit LAF through Professor Li-chuan Liuhuang of the Chung-Hua Labor and Employment Relations Association. He was welcomed by LAF Board Director Mr He-guei Chen, as Chairperson Jing-fang Wu had teaching commitment in the National Taipei University on that day and could not greet him in person. After briefing by the Deputy Secretary-General Jhan-cian Zeng, Mr. Plant and LAF representatives exchanged opinions on strategies of fighting against human trafficking.

Section 3 - Participation in International Meetings

(I) The "ASEAN Civil Society Conference" and "ASEAN People's Forum"

From May 3rd to 6th, 2011, Attorneys Ze-fang Sun of LAF Taipei Branch and Shu-ling Yang of Banciao Branch attended the "ASEAN Civil Society Conference" and the "ASEAN People's Forum" held in Jakarta, Indonesia. Upon invitation from the Taipei Women's Rescue Foundation, the staff attorneys teamed up with members of other anti-human-trafficking NGOs in Taiwan to participate in these meetings. In addition to obtaining further understanding of the labor issues in ASEAN countries, they took the opportunity to discuss with other representatives about the difficulties in contacting Indonesian victims of human trafficking or other migrants who have returned home. The difficulty in contacting returned victims or migrants for further information can keep cases from progressing smoothly, and can affect forwarding compensation after cases have concluded. The representative of the Indonesian Branch of International Organization for Migration promised that LAF may contact them directly to deal with this kind of follow-up problems.

LAF attended the Cross-strait Legal Aid Conference.

(II) Cross-strait Legal Aid Conference

LAF Chairperson Jing-fang Wu, Secretary-General Ji-feng Liao, Executive Secretary Chui-syun Ciou of Changhua Branch and Researcher Meng-syun Cai of Legal Affairs Department of LAF Headquarters attended the “Cross-strait Legal Aid Conference” held in Hong Kong S.A.R. on May 27, 2011. It was on February 22, 2011, that the Conference organizer, the Legal Aid Services Council, offered an invitation to LAF. Since it was not easy to arrange a visit abroad, a special visit was also scheduled to the Legal Aid Department and the Duty Lawyers Service at Kowloon Magistrates Court one day prior to the Conference. At the Conference, experiences were shared with counterparts from Hong Kong S.A.R., Macao S.A.R. and China, and four reports were delivered by LAF representatives, which were “A General View of Legal Aid Services in Taiwan” by Chairperson Jing-fang Wu, “The Focus of Four Places – Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking” by the Secretary-General Ji-feng Liao, “Criminal Justice in Taiwan” and “Legal Aid for Consumer Debtors” by Executive Secretary Chui-syun Ciou of Changhua Branch.

(III) 2011 ILAG Conference - Helsinki

The International Legal Aid Group (“ILAG”) was established in 1992 by Professor Alan Paterson from the University of Strathclyde in U.K. and Mr. Wouter Meur from the Ministry of Justice of the Netherlands. ILAG hosts an international conference every second year, inviting scholars, experts and representatives of legal aid institutions around the world to enhance mutual understanding and discuss the issues and challenges facing legal aid organizations. To date, ILAG remains one of the most reputable international groups in the field of legal aid.

LAF was first invited in 2007. By 2011, it was the third time that the Foundation, represented by Deputy Secretary-General Cian-jhan Zeng, participated in this conference. The topic of this year's Conference was "Re-visioning Legal Aid in an Age of Austerity", with nine sub-issues including: "Austerity and the Irreducible Minimum: What Should Legal Aid Cover and Why?", "Can Technology Offer Answers as well as Savings", "Safeguarding Quality in Difficult Times" and "Self-help: How Far Can It Go?". LAF took the opportunity to voice among international legal aid organizations; at the same time LAF benefitted from the precious experiences of providing innovative services generously shared by other advanced countries.

Section 4 · Visit to Legal Aid Organizations in Hong Kong S.A.R.

In February 2011, the Legal Aid Services Council in Hong Kong S.A.R. invited LAF Chairperson Jing-fang Wu to lead a delegation to attend the "Cross-strait Legal Aid Conference" held in Hong Kong S.A.R. on May 27, 2011. Since it was not easy to arrange a visit abroad, Chairperson Wu instructed that a learning trip to legal aid institutions in Hong Kong S.A.R. one day prior to the conference should be scheduled.

Through liaison and communication, both the Legal Aid Department (the department responsible for administering legal aid in Hong Kong S.A.R.) and the Duty Lawyer Service at the Kowloon Magistrates Court welcomed the delegation; while the Legal Aid Services Council declined due to their commitments in organizing the conference.

It was worth mentioning that LAF's visit to the Legal Aid Department was ice-breaking in the relationship between the two organizations. Ever since establishment, communication with legal aid institutions abroad has been an important aspect of LAF's work. In 2005 when a visit to Hong Kong S.A.R. was being planned, LAF had contacted the Legal Aid Department and expressed the wish to visit but failed to be accepted due to political and other factors. LAF also invited the Legal Aid Department to attend the "International Forum on Legal Aid" hosted by LAF in 2005 and in 2009, but the Legal Aid Department declined on both occasions. In this visit, LAF was greeted by two Deputy Directors of Legal Aid, and it was indeed a major breakthrough for LAF in its relationship with international legal aid organizations.

In this visit, the Legal Aid Department shared the method of assessing applications, the staff attorney hiring process, the legal aid attorneys appointment process and performance review mechanisms; the Duty Lawyer Service also showed the delegation its experiences in dealing with juvenile cases. The information which the delegation learned from these visits was valuable reference for the Foundation in its endeavors to expand the "staff attorney system", improve the "legal aid attorney's evaluation system" and to enhance "legal aid service quality".

Chapter 8 The Foundation's Outlook for the Future

To protect the rights and interests of the disadvantaged and to provide quality legal aid services, the Foundation's goals for 2012 are listed as follows:

I. Continue to process general legal aid cases

The 21 LAF branches around Taiwan provide legal aid for representation in court proceedings, mediation and settlement negotiations and the drafting of legal documents, and provide other necessary legal services and expenses. In 2012, the Foundation will continue to handle legal aid cases to help more people in need.

II. Enhance the quality and efficiency of legal aid Services

To protect the rights and interests of legal aid recipients, legal aid attorneys are appointed by LAF on the basis of fairness. The amount of appointment is increased or reduced and unsuitable attorneys can be removed according to his/her performance, feedback from recipients of legal aid, the Courts and Public Prosecutors. The Foundation also planned the following objectives to enhance the quality and efficiency of legal aid attorneys' services:

(I) Develop the staff attorney system and establish "specialist legal center"

The Foundation began to employ staff attorneys in 2006. Staff attorneys play an important role in enhancing the Foundation's image and in the development of legal aid work. LAF has received positive feedback and encouragement to expand the system. To provide comprehensive and professional services for disadvantaged people, in 2012, LAF should continue to build on the system, recruit more attorneys and equip itself with the necessary software and hardware.

As disadvantaged people may have different needs for legal services because of poverty, status or their situations, staff attorneys should develop specialization accordingly. When more attorneys are recruited, the Foundation plans to establish legal centers which specialize in different areas of law, e.g. "criminal defense", "family and juvenile", "indigenous", "labor" and "consumer debt clearance" in order to provide professional services that are responsive to the needs of disadvantaged people.

(II) Establish a nationwide complaint hotline

The method and procedures of handling complaints are stipulated in the "Guidelines Governing Complaint Handling Procedures" which, together with a computerized follow-up system, enable LAF to check and understand case progress at anytime when complaints are raised by legal aid recipients, the Courts or Prosecutors in charge of the case and other concerned parties. LAF plans to integrate the existing complaint channels by establishing a uniform complaint hotline to provide an unobstructed and convenient access which helps to protect people's rights and interests and mediate disputes.

(III) Evaluation of legal aid attorneys and Assessment Commissioners

To maintain service quality and protect the rights and interests of legal aid recipients, the Foundation carry out regular evaluations to identify outstanding attorneys and those who require improvement. The Assessment Commissioners provide front-line services, and the quality of their work is also important. The Foundation plans to perform evaluation of the Assessment Commissioners, the result can be used as reference for eliminating unsuitable commissioners and for system review.

(IV) Educational trainings for legal aid attorneys

To reinforce legal aid attorneys' commitment to serve disadvantaged people and the expertise in handling their cases, LAF plans to expand cooperation with the National Bar Association, regional bar associations and social welfare institutions to arrange educational trainings for attorneys, conferences and symposiums; and to arrange training course series for specific issues (e.g. juvenile cases, criminal cases, human trafficking cases, CDCP cases and environmental protection cases).

III. Provide legal aid services under special programs for specific disadvantaged groups

(I) Continue to run the "First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program"

As a major indicator of human rights, the First Criminal Interrogation Accompanied by Legal Aid Attorney Program has been the subject of public attention. Since the launch of the pilot program, the total case volume has not reached the expected target. However, the service has made a positive impact on the protection of litigation right, ensuring the legality of investigation procedures and the efficiency and accuracy adjudication. In the future, LAF will continue to promote this special program. In 2012, the main goals for this program are as follows:

1. Increase the volume of legal aid cases

There is still room for the growth of cases referred by the Courts, Prosecutors Offices, police and the Investigation Bureau. LAF hopes that consensus can be reached in relation to inclusion of all police precincts in the program, and the creation of a reward mechanism for case referrals to increase the number of cases aided by LAF.

2. Expand the scope of eligibility

Loosen restrictions for applicants with visual, hearing, vocal or speech impairments and for non-nationals, so that they can apply for the company of attorneys upon being arrested or being requested to be interrogated without summons or notice.

3. Enhance the quality of services provided by attorneys

Concrete measures include establishing a system of priority appointment of subsequent legal aid cases to attorneys who accompanied applicants during the first interrogation; organize educational trainings for attorneys or experience-sharing meetings.

(II) Develop the "Program to Strengthen Defense Function in the Preliminary Procedures of the Criminal Court of First Instance"

In criminal cases, effective defense in the preliminary procedures can reduce the number of cases in which the accused are unhappy with the verdict, and ensure the protection human rights by reducing the number of cases which wonder between the different levels of court. In 2012, LAF will continue to run the “Program to Strengthen Defense Function in the Preliminary Procedures of the Criminal Court of First Instance” by arranging educational trainings, and require legal aid attorneys to present statements in the preliminary procedures, for example, the statement of preliminary procedures, motion for investigation of evidence and the statement of oral arguments. Improved preparation of evidence in the preliminary procedures allows compliance with the requirements of the Criminal Speedy Trial Act, and strengthens the role of attorneys in the preliminary procedures of the criminal court of first instance.

(III) Develop the “Program to Strengthen Criminal Defense in the Court of Third Instance”

The Court of third instance decides cases on the question of law. Cases in the Court of third instance are often major criminal cases involving capital punishment or life sentence. Without a legal representative, the rights of the accused might not be properly protected. To promote the “Program to Strengthen Criminal Defense in the Court of Third Instance”, the Foundation will focus on the following tasks in 2012:

1. Visit the Supreme Court, the Taiwan High Court and its branches to establish a referral mechanism for cases which have been appealed to the Court of third instance by an accused who was charged with felony or those with mental or intellectual disability.
2. Arrange training course series for attorneys in charge of criminal cases which have been appealed to the Court of third instance.
3. Promotion in prisons and handle applications from the accused in custody.
4. Convene coordination meetings with the Courts, Public Prosecutors Offices, attorneys, the Ministry of Justice and its subordinate prisons to review the performance of the program.
5. Weigh the possibility of promoting law reforms to compel defense representation in the Court of third instance.

(IV) Legal Aid for Juvenile Assistance Cases

To protect juveniles’ rights and interests, LAF has continued to promote legal aid for Juvenile Assistance cases. In addition to promotions, the Foundation plans to cooperate with the Juvenile Court, and establish case-referral mechanism to protect juveniles during investigations and trial proceedings. The Foundation will also arrange educational trainings needed by legal aid attorneys who will act as Assistant in juvenile delinquent protection cases.

(V) Proceed with the “Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance Program”

To promote the Legal Aid for Consumer Debt Clearance Program (the “CDCP”), LAF has invested substantial resources and achieved an impressive growth in case volume. However, as judicial opinions are yet to be formed, the promotion of CDCP was not without impediments. Knowing that a reasonable debt-clearance mechanism is essential in a modern capitalist society, LAF will continue to promote CDCP in the future. The major tasks of this program in 2012 are:

1. Upgrade the quality of legal aid attorneys' work in CDCP cases to ensure that recipients receive substantive and effective legal aid; arrange trainings for CDCP attorneys and evaluate their performance.
2. Adjust attorneys' remuneration and modify operational flows and business operation system in line with the adjustments.
3. Research amendments to the Consumer Debt Clearance Act and carry out case studies.

(VI) "Legal Aid for Victims of Human Trafficking Program"

Human trafficking is a serious cross-border crime which jeopardizes fundamental human rights, and is an issue which has attracted attention at the international level. To uphold the mission of protecting the rights of the disadvantaged, LAF is committed to provide the victims of human trafficking with legal assistance and fight against the criminals who inflict sexual and labor exploitation on the victims. The Foundation's major tasks in 2012 are:

1. Arrange educational trainings for attorneys in charge of human trafficking cases.
2. Continue to organize training courses for legal interpreters.
3. Review the Specialist Assessment Scheme and the service flows of the program.

(VII) Proceed with the "Expanded Legal Consultation Program"

Studies and the experiences of other advanced countries tell us that the fastest and most economical way to resolve a dispute before resorting to litigation is "legal consultation". Therefore it is the responsibility of LAF to offer legal consultation at locations where the public may be served. In the future, LAF plans to provide stationed legal consultation services in remote areas where legal consultation resources are insufficient, and launch a legal aid information website to provide online legal education. The Foundation will also start to pilot specialized legal consultation services in "civil", "criminal", "labor" and "family" cases in metropolitan branch offices.

(VIII) Proceed with the "Immediate Support Program for Labor Litigation"

Starting from 2009, LAF was entrusted by the Council of Labor Affairs of the Executive Yuan with the "Immediate Support Program for Labor Litigation". Laborer can apply to LAF when they needed legal assistance in labor disputes or in claiming compensation for occupational injury. In the two years since the initiation of this program, a total of 9,120 laborers have received legal aid from LAF, and obtained favorable results in more than 80% of the cases. The collaboration of resources through this program enabled maximum protection of disadvantaged laborers. In 2012, the Foundation expects to continue to promote the program. To effectively guard laborers' litigation rights and maintain legal aid quality, the Foundation plans to establish an archive of attorneys specializing in labor litigation, and move towards piloting specialized assessment of labor litigation cases at branch offices.

IV. Reinforce mediation and settlement in civil and family cases

The mission of LAF is to protect disadvantaged people's legal rights, but filing lawsuits is only one of the many ways to resolve disputes. LAF will consult the alternative dispute resolution mechanisms developed in the western countries, i.e. mediation, conciliation and arbitration, and allow attorneys to intervene and mediate before filing a lawsuit. The Foundation plans to strengthen legal aid for mediation and settlement in civil and family cases by organize trainings to increase attorneys' proficiency in mediation skills, and by increasing public promotion of the Foundation's mediation services.

V. Proceed with the collection of contribution, recovery, repayment and withdrawal charges (Four Fees)

In managing the collection of the "four fees", the Foundation will supervise branch offices, and continue to communicate with the Judicial Yuan to coordinate solutions. The Foundation will also follow through and regularly check the results of collection.

VI. Management of Guarantee Certificates

When disadvantaged people suffer from encroachment of rights and interests and resort to law, they face injustice after winning the case if the defendants fraudulently transferred their assets because the plaintiffs could not afford the costs of issuing provisional proceedings to seize the defendants' assets. Hence, it is stipulated by Article 65 of the Legal Aid Act that, if the case has high prospects of success and it is necessary to seize the defendants' assets, LAF may issue a guarantee certificate which is accepted by the Courts as replacement of the security required by provisional proceedings. Due to the large amounts of money guaranteed, the Foundation will actively follow up, and request the return of the certificates when they are due for retrieval.

VII. Cooperation with College and University Law Schools

In 2012, besides recruiting law students from colleges and universities as volunteers, the Foundation plans to collaborate with law schools to offer case study courses. LAF staff attorneys or legal aid attorneys will share their experiences in class to help law students understand the specialty and professionalism of LAF cases, and encourage more outstanding graduates to join LAF in the provision of legal aid services to disadvantaged people.

VIII. Enhance the Efficacy of Fund-Raising

According to the Legal Aid Act, the endowment of the Foundation is NT$10,000,000,000. Apart from encouraging donations from the public, the Competent Authority will budget annual contributions to the endowment of the Foundation. Regarding the operational budget, LAF plans to enhance the effect of fund-raising through the following measures:

(I) Integration of governmental legal aid resources

LAF will actively seek cooperation with other governmental units which provide legal services (e.g. the Ministry of Interior, the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of National Defense, the Council of Labor Affairs and Council of Indigenous Peoples of the Executive Yuan, the National Immigration Agency of the Ministry of Interior, and the Environmental Protection Administration). The integration of legal aid resources could increase administrative effectiveness, and the government's legal services could be unified and accessed from a single facilitator. This will also increase the Foundation's sources of funding.

(II) Donations from law firms and attorneys

LAF seeks the contribution of bar associations and law firms, and will approach them to raise donations.

(III) Fund-raising and charity activities

LAF plans to promote to the public the philosophy and ideals of legal aid in order to improve understanding of the Foundation and recognition of legal aid. The Foundation hoped that through this understanding, the public will be encouraged to make donations, thus increase the amount of donations from the public year by year.

IX. Strengthen research on disadvantaged people's demand for legal aid

According to Article 1 of the Legal Aid Act, all those who are unable to obtain adequate legal protection due to the lack of financial resources or other reasons, are the subject of legal assistance provided by the Foundation. Thus, ever since its inception, the Foundation has kept in close contact with various social welfare organizations and has been deeply concerned with disadvantaged people's demand for legal aid. To protect their legal rights and interests, it is necessary to first understand the specific legal issues they are facing so that adequate assistance may be provided. However, with the existing limited resources, it is not possible for the Foundation to take care of all of their demands. Moreover, changes in society and the economy also affect the formation and development of disadvantaged communities. Consequently, LAF will continue to research and endeavor to understand the needs of the disadvantaged in order to provide timely legal aid services.

X. Review the legal aid system

It is 7 years since the Legal Aid Act became effective on July 1, 2004. Besides support and assistance, the Foundation has also received many advice as well as expectations from society on the development of legal aid. While endeavoring to assist disadvantaged people solve their legal problems, LAF finds that there are still people who cannot receive legal aid due to restrictions of the Legal Aid Act. To ensure that legal aid services meet the needs of the disadvantaged at the same time maintain reasonable distribution of resources, issues such as legal aid contents, application and assessment procedures, organization structure and regulations should be reviewed, and the necessary modifications should be made to respond to the demands and expectations of society.

Note: The category “analytic legal Consultation” signifies that an applicant was granted with analytic legal consultation because of the complexity of the case. The case is assigned to a legal aid attorney, who will provide a three-hour consultation session to clarify the facts and legal concerns of the case, and then provide written advice. This service is different from the general on-site verbal consultation offered in the assessment room.

Note: 1. A legal aid case is closed when the legal aid attorney finishes the case and applies to LAF for closure remuneration. In the case of document drafting, an attorney finishes the case by completion of drafting; in the case of mediation or settlement negotiations, by obtaining an outcome (successfully reached a mutually acceptable settlement or otherwise); in the case of litigation, when all proceedings in the adjudication level have concluded (rather than when the court issues a judgment or verdict or when the Prosecutor's Office issues a decision to prosecute or otherwise). Hence a closed case may include one still in court.

2. The closed cases shown in this table exclude those which were closed after Variation Assessment (e.g. cases withdrawn, cancelled or terminated).

Notes: 1. The numbers in this table are classified according to the category decided by the Assessment Committee (decisions of the Review Committee are excluded).
 2. The totals are calculated by case numbers. Where a case involves two matter types, the case is calculated only once by its case number.
 3. The numbers listed in this table exclude cases which have been transferred to another branch office. Transferred cases will only be counted once in the receiving branch office. Where a case has been transferred but not yet accepted by the receiving branch office, the case is still counted in the original office.
 4. The percentage of labor litigation cases is the highest in the Greater Taipei area (Taipei City and New Taipei City), followed by other cities under the Executive Yuan and metropolitan areas (Taichung, Kaohsiung, Tainan).
