BIOGRAPHY

Teppei Ono is a staff attorney of the Japan Legal Support Center.

He received his Juris Doctorate Degree in March 2006 from the Chuo Law School. After passing the bar exam, he was admitted to the bar in 2008. With the recommendation of the Japan Federation of Bar Associations, he studied at the University of Essex in the UK, where he obtained his Master of Laws Degree in International Human Rights Law in December 2015.

He joined the Center for Prisoners' Rights Japan (CPR) in 2016 and has served as Secretary-General since 2019.

He has dealt with many criminal defence cases, and took the lead in improving the access to justice for prisoners by providing legal services at various penal facilities including Tokyo Detention House and Fuchu Prison.
