BIOGRAPHY

Kai-Li Lee, currently the Director at GOH-Migrant, has long been devoting her effort into providing help, advocating for policies, and integrating cross-professional network for human trafficking victims, and actively participating in project innovation and international collaboration projects. In a little more than two years, what was once a small local migrant worker shelter has transformed into a comprehensive innovative service center.

Kai-Li is now a lecturer that gives lectures in Taiwan, mostly invited to governmental agencies and organizations in the private sector working on migrant worker services and human trafficking prevention to provide trainings, and participate in amendments of relevant laws and policies. Her sociological and Christian theological background makes her an advocate in human rights first and peace promotion.
